FIGHT ON AT HELSINGFORS.

Finnish Factions In Struggle Over Viborg Manifesto.

Helsingfors, Finland, Oct. 8.—The expected struggle between the conservative and radical factions of the constitutional democratic congress in session here has now begun over the committee's compromise report on the Viborg manifesto, the opponents of the report declaring that any sidetracking of the manifesto would stultify the party in the eyes of the voters. Those who are opposed to the committee's report will propose as a means of avoiding a rupture within the party an amendment to the draft striking out the paragraph in the Viborg manifesto advocating the application of the principle of passive resistance, particularly in regard to urging recruits not to join the colors and proposing the non-payment of taxes, which suggestions are declared to be impracticable, while retaining the paragraphs endorsing the action of the members of the outlawed parliament who signed the Viborg manifesto. The conservatives, headed by Peter Struve, editor of the Duma; Leov Petrajitski, constitutional democratic leader in the late parliament, and M. Duque, have abandoned their fight for a complete disavowal of the manifesto and have joined in the defense of the committee's report, which it is expected will be accepted.

Prof. Paul Milukoff's proposition that parliament shall not recognize any future loan concluded without its sanction will also probably be carried.

The present congress is the smallest of the four held by the constitutional democratic party, due to the belief of many of the delegates that the government would not permit the meeting.

SUNDAY HUNTERS MUST PAY STATE

HENRY VOLMERDING PARTS WITH A GOOD ROUND SUM.

Hunted Squirrels on Sabbath and Is Hit Hard—General News of Courts.

Henry Volmerding paid a fine of a little over $28 in Justice Tancey's court today on the charge of hunting squirrels on Sunday and didn't as much as get a little bit of game to take the sharp edge off the pang that it cost him to separate himself from the money. The charge was preferred by Frank W. Hill, a deputy game warden, and he entered a plea of guilty.

The fine was $1 and the costs included $20 which must be paid to the auditor of state to be placed to the credit of the fund established for the protection of game and fish. It is compulsory upon the courts to add this amount in every case where there is a conviction and Sunday hunting promises to be an expensive pastime. Volmerding had just reached the woods in which he was hunting and had shot twice but did not get a squirrel.

Court Notes.

The divorce suit of Florence E. Ackerman against George E. Ackerman was dismissed in the circuit court today.

An order was issued by Judge Heaton in the superior court instructing the sheriff to secure from Charles M. Zimmerman, of Cedar Creek township, his wife's clothing and that of their children. He is also ordered to give up the schoolbooks belonging to the children. She instituted suit for divorce nearly a year ago and has since had custody of the children and could not send them to school because she had no books or clothing for them.

CLOCKS OUT OF BUSINESS.

The fifty-six clocks of the Western Union Telegraph company have been out of commission since Saturday by the cutting of the wires in Kenedy's saloon corner Harrison and Columbia streets, where one of the clocks is located. The clock was in the way of putting up a stove and the wires were cut under the impression that the clock was on a circuit by itself instead of being on one with fifty-five others.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF OPEN SUNDAY

BOY FOUND BY POLICE IN DRUNKEN STUPOR.

Names of Saloonkeepers Who Sold Him Liquor Obtained—The City Court.

An eighteen-year-old boy who gave the name of William Halstead, which he confessed was assumed, was in police court this morning for public intoxication and was fined $1 and costs and sentence suspended during good behavior. His true name was secured by the police, but is suppressed on account of his family.

The boy was so drunk that Patrolman Johnston was unable to rouse him and he did not waken until he had been in a cell for several hours. He stated on the stand that he drank in Ed Steele's two saloons near the transfer corner and the other at Berry and Calhoun, and in A. B. Jackson's place on Calhoun street. He was in one or two others near the transfer corner and drank, but was so drunk at the time that he could not state positively which it was. The names of the saloonkeepers were taken by Judge Skelton, who insisted on knowing them, although the young man demurred. The boy was lying in an alley when he was found by the patrolman.

On His Honeymoon.

Arthur Young, sixty-three years old and a bridegroom, was given an hour to get out of town. He stated that he lived at work at Tiffin and went west, where he got married a short time ago and was taking a bridal trip back when he got mixed up with Fort Wayne booze. Patrolmen Dickson and Spillner sent him in.

The officers said that Young and his wife both visited saloons and drank together and the prisoner admitted as much. He also said he had lost track of his bride Saturday morning and that she had all the cash in the family and was in charge of two big trunks. Patrolman Dickson also said that he saw fourteen saloonkeepers put Young out of their places on Friday and that he and his wife were not allowed to remain more than one night in any hotel.

Got Military Uniforms.

Walter Calhoun was fined $5 and costs and sent to jail thirty-five days for stealing two military uniforms belonging to the state. He went to the encampment at Indianapolis in August and on his return left for Hillsdale, Mich., with the uniforms and was seen on the street yesterday by members of company A, who trailed him until Capt. Clyde Driesbach was notified and in turn notified the police and caused his arrest.

The Other Cases.

Thomas Roeler and Orie May were arrested Saturday for drunkenness and were fined $1 and costs and $5 and costs respectively.

Paul Miller, who has been up a number of times, was fined $1 and costs. He got drunk on Sunday and was picked up at the transfer corner last night.

TRACTION MEN IN CONFERENCE HERE

PRESIDENT J. LEVERING JONES INSPECTS PROGRESS.

Philadelphia Capitalist Home From Europe Says American Trolley Lines Are Far Ahead.

President J. Levering Jones, of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company, accompanied by Henry Rainey, of Philadelphia, arrived in the city this morning and with local directors and other officials of the big traction syndicate have been spending the day going over matters connected with the local trolley system. Mr. Jones explained that his visit was merely the usual fall inspection; that he came to Fort Wayne merely to note progress that had been made during recent months and to aid in planning for the future.

"Our attention today has been very largely taken up by affairs of the Logansport-Lafayette extension of our interurban system," said Mr. Jones to a representative of The Sentinel. "We have been moving in this matter as rapidly as possible, but are now delayed by the non-arrival of steel, and we are using every endeavor to secure as early delivery on the rails as possible. We are badly in need of them. Beyond this our purpose at this time is merely to look over the property in a general way to see if there is anything we can do in carrying forward our primary purpose, to better the trolley service in every way."

Mr. Jones has just returned from a somewhat extended tour of Europe and it has developed that in connection with his vacation Mr. Jones made something of a study of traction matters abroad. Replying to a query regarding a comparison between Europe and American trolley systems, Mr. Jones said:

"American electrical railroads are in every way superior to those not only of England but of continental Europe. As yet the European people have not pushed out into the country with the trolley lines, their cars are more narrow and not nearly so handsome or so comfortable as those on American roads, the service is more infrequent and in general the European electric lines are far behind those in America today."

Colonel Jones stated that the company now expected to put the new Fort Wayne power station in operation in sixty days.

PACIFICATION OF CUBA IS COMPLETE

Cruel War is Over and Valorous Insurgents Lay Down Their Arms.

BUT ONE DARK SPOT

A Few Rural Guards Can Control the Situation There—Taft and Bacon Occupy Palace.

Havana, Oct. 8.—The reports received by the provisional government show that the pacification of Cuba is practically complete, with the exception of the province of Santa Clara, where matters are rapidly nearing a settlement. The only trouble known to exist is at Aiguizar, province of Havana, where the liberals and moderates are about equally divided and irritation has been caused by the reinstatement of a liberal mayor. The disquieting condition at Aiguizar, however, has been caused by the exuberance of the reckless disbanded insurgents and it is believed that the thirty rural guards there will be able to keep the peace. The disturbance at Guines was suppressed last night. The disorderly former insurgents left the town and the marines sent there report that the liberals' celebration of their victory passed off without any further disorder. None of the men cut with machetes was seriously injured.

Taft and Bacon Now in the Palace.

Governor Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon took up their residence at the palace today and were busily engaged with examining the reports of the heads of departments on the first weeks' work under the provisional government.

The cruiser Brooklyn this morning landed 350 marines, who went to Camp Columbia.

The battleships Kentucky and Indiana will sail this afternoon for New England waters.

No further reports of trouble in any part of the island have been received. The disarming of the insurgents is practically complete with the exception of small isolated bands, who will be disarmed by the rural guards.

TROOPS SAIL FOR CUBA.

Transport Niagara Leaves Norfolk With Battalion Aboard.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 8.—The transport Niagara sailed from this point today having on board the First battalion of the Twenty-eighth infantry. The Monterey is scheduled to sail this afternoon with headquarters' band and two battalions of the Seventeenth infantry and hospital corps. The Seneca is loading two battalions, headquarters' band of the Twenty-seventh infantry and will sail probably at twilight tomorrow. The transport Paloma carrying the baggage of the Twenty-seventh infantry and Fifth cavalry and animals is also loading and will sail tomorrow. There are now eight transports in port and two have already sailed.

VETERANS OF THE SPANISH WAR MEET

THIRD ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT NOW ON IN WASHINGTON.

Organization Shown to Be Flourishing—Plan to Consolidate With Massachusetts Body.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Spanish-American war veterans from practically every state in the union are in attendance on the third annual encampment of the organization which began its sessions here today. The first session was called to order by Commander in Chief Charles R. Miller, of Ohio. Indiana, Ohio, Oklahoma and the southern states sent large delegations. Oklahoma will endeavor to have the next annual encampment held in the new state.

At the conclusion of the welcoming addresses, Commander-in-Chief Miller submitted his annual report. He said he was assured that there was a great awakening of interest in the organization, especially in the south, where many camps now are being formed. A tentative agreement has been entered into between Commander Miller and Commander Walker, of the legion of Spanish war veterans of Massachusetts, providing for a consolidation of the two organizations. It probably will be ratified at this encampment. The Massachusetts organization has about 7,500 members. Commander Miller recommended that in the south where there are many negroes eligible to membership in the organization, separate camps and separate departments be organized for white and for black members. The financial condition of the organization, Commander Miller said, was good, all bills being paid and a balance of $2,400 in bank. While it was not possible for the commander to report the precise membership of the United Spanish war veterans, he said it approximated 45,000.

THE HORSE CAME BACK.

Cards were sent out to the adjoining counties and Mr. Lackey is of the opinion that his horse was stolen and broke away from the thieves and made its way back.

DEATH ENDS FINE BUSINESS CAREER

REUBEN S. PATTERSON SUCCUMBS TO APOPLEXY.

Prominent Clothier Dies at Indianapolis After Illness of Many Months.

After an illness of many months Reuben S. Patterson, a leading clothier who has been prominent in the mercantile life of Fort Wayne for the past twelve years, died at 1 o'clock

REUBEN S. PATTERSON.

Well Known Fort Wayne Merchant, Who Died at Indianapolis.

Sunday morning in the Dr. Stern sanitarium at Indianapolis. Mr. Patterson was 43 years of age and death was directly due to an attack of apoplexy with which he was stricken two weeks ago at a time when he was apparently regaining his health.

For more than a year Mr. Patterson had been suffering from a nervous affection, due to too close application to business and this was attended by a general physical decline that gave his friends much alarm. Mr. Patterson relinquished active charge of his business affairs to the management of Harry P. Fletcher, and himself sought a restoration of health. Three months ago he determined to place himself under the care of an Indianapolis specialist, and he entered the Stern sanitarium for that purpose. Until two weeks ago, when the attack of apoplexy developed he was apparently making marked improvement, and his condition was regarded as encouraging. A week later, however, there was a marked change for the worse, and Mrs. Patterson was summoned to her husband's bedside. She arrived in time to be recognized by the patient, but on Thursday, Mr. Patterson lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he did not rally. Saturday afternoon friends in this city were advised that death was very near, and Mr. Fletcher hurried to Indianapolis. He was with the merchant when the end came and accompanied the remains to this city Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Patterson was a native of Canada, born at Collingwood September 7, 1863. At the age of 4 years he was taken by his parents to Lapeer, Mich., where he received both his scholastic and business education. His father was a merchant, and it was under his tutelage that the young man acquired the training which later won for him conspicuous prominence in the clothing trade. He went to the southwest to embark in business on his own account, but an outbreak of yellow fever drove him back to the north, and he opened a general store at Stirling, Mich. In 1890 Mr. Patterson sold out and went to New York, taking a position with a large clothing house. Four years later, in November, 1894, he came to Fort Wayne and engaged in the clothing and furnishing goods business with E. L. Golden, under the firm name of Golden & Patterson. After two years he purchased the interest of his partner and the institution has been markedly successful. Mr. Patterson was a business man of conspicuous ability, original, forceful and enterprising and has occupied a prominent position in the ranks of Fort Wayne merchants. Personally he was very popular.

He was united in marriage about eight years ago to Miss Hazlett Tolan, of this city, who, with one child now 6 years of age, survives. Mr. Patterson was a member of the Presbyterian church. Funeral services were held privately at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence, 905 Columbia avenue, and the remains will be taken to Westfield, N. Y., for interment.

The funeral party will leave for the east this evening. Mrs. Patterson, Miss Jones and Mr. Fletcher accompanying the remains to New York, where they will be laid to rest in the family burial ground at Westfield.

KILLS DAUGHTER'S NEGRO ASSAILANT

KENTUCKY FARMER TAKES JUSTICE INTO OWN HANDS.

Pursues and Shoots Down Crippled Man Who Confessed Crime—Will Not Be Molested.

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 8.—Ben Jones, a young negro, was shot to death yesterday near Vicksburg, Livingston county, by John Scott, a farmer of that section. Jones brutally assaulted a young daughter of Scott and was chased down by the father and killed. Scott is not likely to be molested, as the sympathy of the people is with him. In the past two months two other negroes were lynched in Livingston county for assaulting women. It is declared that an illicit distillery in the locality is the principal cause of the crimes.

COX AND ZENOR FIGHT STILL ON

Effort to Compromise Big Row in Third Indiana District Fails.

ZENOR SPURNS PLAN

Hope Not Wholly Abandoned That a Settlement Will Be Found—General Indiana News.

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 8.—The second attempt of James L. Loyd, of Missouri, chairman of the democratic congressional committee for the western district to bring about a settlement of the controversy between W. T. Zenor, and W. E. Cox, over the democratic congressional nomination in the New Albany district, resulted in failure and Mr. Lloyd has returned to his home disappointed over the outcome of his conference with Cox and Zenor, but hopeful that the matter may be straightened out before the election. He declined to discuss the situation.

At the conference with Cox and Zenor, which lasted for several hours, Lloyd made additional suggestions to his overtures for a primary in Floyd county to be held under the direction of the national committee. He suggested that the primary be held within ten days from date; that both candidates return to their homes and remain out of the county until after the primary; that both pledge themselves in writing not to expend money in the primary, and that the candidates on the city ticket be excused from voting in the primary, and that they stay out of the county on the day of the primary.

Mr. Cox accepted the proposition, but Judge Zenor declined to agree to it, holding, as he has throughout the controversy, that the primary should be under the control of the county central committee and that the latter's powers should not be usurped by the state or national committee.

STATE CHARITIES MEETING.

Opening Session of Association's Convention at Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 8.—Lieutenant Governor Miller presided today over the session of the State Charities association. The session was devoted to the state institutions. Former Auditor of State W. H. Hart said he had become convinced that the better control of institutions of the state was by separate boards, rather than by a centralized board. Superintendent Johnson, of the institution for the deaf and dumb, said it was a great day for the state institutions when they were removed from partisan politics. Mr. Johnson urged the dismissal of employes of the state institutions who were active in politics.

This afternoon's session of the general conference was devoted to juvenile charities. The principal address was made by H. H. Hanna, of Indianapolis, on "The State and Its Child Dependents."

FOR SAFE KEEPING

Bloomington Murderer Is Confined in Indianapolis Jail.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 8.—"Spunk" Jones, the negro who shot and killed Alfred Stephens in Bloomington Saturday night, is in the Marion county jail for safe-keeping. Jones will not discuss the shooting except to say that he fired in self-defense. He said that Stephens had quarreled with him and reached out for a revolver that he had in the upper part of his wagon. Jones said it was a question of shooting first, and he drew his revolver and fired. The Monroe county officials came here with the prisoner on a traction car.

SLASHED THROAT WITH PEN-KNIFE

CHARLES W. PRICE COMMITS SUICIDE NEAR WALLEN.

Bachelor Farmer Was Found in Dying Condition in His Room Saturday Evening.

Charles W. Price, a farmer, 40 years of age and unmarried, ended his own life Saturday evening by slashing his throat with a pen-knife, and was found shortly after in a dying condition in his room at the residence of his brother-in-law, John W. Sunderland, two miles west of Wallen, where he made his home. Coroner Stults, who made an investigation of the case, was unable to find cause for the suicide other than that of despondency over the ill-health of Price's aged mother, 84 years of age, to whom he was devotedly attached.

Price was apparently in his usual good health Saturday evening, but shortly after having eaten his supper he complained of a headache and retired to his room. About twenty minutes later his sister, Mrs. Sunderland, who went to his room, found Price lying face downward upon the floor, a deep gash from a knife in the right side of the throat, and his head lying in a pool of blood. Price was breathing his last, and in his hand was tightly grasped the pen-knife with which he had inflicted the mortal wound. Mr. Price had been making his home with the Sunderlands for some time in order to be near his aged mother, who also resided there.

LATIN AMERICANS COMING TO FRONT

SOUTH AMERICAN DIPLOMATS IN STANDING AT WASHINGTON.

Several Have Rank of Ambassador and Others May Be Raised—Recent Events Important.

Washington, October 6.—Marked changes in the personnel of the Latin-American representation in Washington have taken place within the last three months and as the season for activity in diplomatic circles approaches, great interest is shown in new diplomats from South and Central America and there is much speculation as to appointments yet to be made.

With the return of Secretary Root after his remarkable tour of South America, public attention has been directed especially to the southern republics and they have taken on an added importance in official circles. European diplomatists no longer monopolize attention as they did formerly, and reports that Argentina is anxious to follow the example of Mexico and Brazil and elevate its mission in Washington to an embassy are causing much comment.

Ever since the serious illness of the Mexican ambassador, Mr. Casasus, last year, it has been rumored that he probably would not stay in Washington long and the opinion seems to prevail now in diplomatic circles that the ambassador will soon surrender his post and return to his law practice in Mexico.

Although Mr. Walker-Martinez, the Chilean minister, has not formally resigned his post it is well understood that he will not return to Washington from Chile, where he is at present looking after property interests which were affected by the earthquake. Nobody has been mentioned yet as his successor, but a new charge, Alberto Yeatman, arrived in Washington a few days ago to look after Chilean interests.

Last Friday Jose Rosa Facas, the new minister from Salvador and Honduras, was received by the president, and in a few days Dr. Enrique Cortez, the new Colombian minister, will be formally presented to the president.

Rumors that the Costa Rican minister, Joaquim Bernard Calvo, would not return to Washington have been quieted by letters received from him announcing that he expects to arrive in Washington from Central America about October 15. Mr. Calvo has been participating in the drawing of the treaty of friendship and commerce, growing out of the arbitration of the differences between Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador.

As Senor Obaldia, the Panama minister, has been elected vice president of his country, he must be replaced in Washington and another new face among the Latin-American contingent will be Luis Melian Lafinur, who has been sent here as minister from Uruguay.

POLITICS IN WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Root, Shaw and Taft to Go to New York to Save the State.

CANNON ALSO TO AID

Is Settled That the Secretary of State Will Make a Speech in Empire State Campaign.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Secretary Root is to make a campaign speech in New York city on October 22. He will speak in Carnegie hall. This announcement was made today by Chairman Sherman of the republican congressional committee, after a conference with the president.

Mr. Sherman also announced that Secretary Shaw and Speaker Cannon would take an active part in the New York campaign.

Mr. Sherman also said that Secretary Taft would be asked to take part in the campaign in the event that he found it convenient to do so after his return from Cuba.

If he consents the secretary will be asked to speak in the west. It originally was intended to send Secretary Taft to Wisconsin, Missouri and Iowa. Mr. Sherman's talk with the president was on the general political situation and was in continuation of the conferences held yesterday.

DOCTOR ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

NEW JERSEY PHYSICIAN PLACED IN COURT DOCK.

Dr. Brouwer Alleged to Have Given Wife Arsenic and Ground Glass While She Was Sick.

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 8.—Dr. Frank Brouwer, who, until his arrest several months ago on a charge of wife murder, was a prominent practicing physician here, was placed on trial today for his life. The presiding justice is Charles E. Henderson, of the supreme court. It was announced at the opening of the trial that each will call about forty witnesses.

Public feeling has been aroused to a marked degree by what has come to be known through a large part of the state as "the Brouwer case," while in some places, particularly in this county, the line between Dr. Brouwer's accusers and defenders has been sharply drawn. One outgrowth of this is a fund of $2,500 which has been contributed by the accused man's friends to aid in meeting the costs of the defense.

Mrs. Brouwer died in Sept., 1905, after an illness which was diagnosed at first by her husband as cholera morbus. Two trained nurses called to attend Mrs. Brouwer declared themselves dissatisfied with the treatment administered by Dr. Brouwer and withdrew from the case. Another nurse was employed and Dr. W. M. Cate was called in consultation. Dr. Cate retired from the case but later signed a death certificate setting forth that Mrs. Brouwer died of Bright's disease.

Soon after the funeral rumors began to spread that there was something suspicious about Mrs. Brouwer's death. Besides the fact of the retirement of the nurses and Dr. Cate it was also said that there had been quarrels between Dr. Brouwer and his wife over the administration of her parents' estate. It also was rumored that Mrs. Brouwer had been jealous of one of the doctor's woman patients and that this had caused a disagreement between the couple.

Trevonian E. Hyer, of Long Branch, a brother of the dead woman, heard of these reports and finally began an investigation. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, in which Mrs. Brouwer was insured for $1,000 in favor of her husband, refused to pay the policy and also began an inquiry. As a result of these investigations the body was exhumed December 19 and an autopsy performed. That Mrs. Brouwer's death had not been caused by Brights disease is said to have been the unanimous opinion reached by the physicians. The digestive organs were removed from the body and sent to Dr. Genth of the university of Pennsylvania for an analysis of the contents. Dr. Genth is said to have reported that he had found traces of arsenic and what was supposed to be ground glass in the stomach. The grand jury found an indictment in January, charging Mrs. Brouwer with the murder of his wife, and he was arrested.

Next Friday evening a meeting will be held in the parlors of the Plymouth Congregational church for the purpose of organizing a Men's club among the members of the congregation. Tentative efforts looking to the formation of the society have met with a great deal of encouragement and it is hoped that the club will start off with a large membership.

On Wednesday evening the annual meeting of the congregation will be held and officers elected for next year. Yesterday there were fourteen additions to the church and Rev. J. M. Seymour, of Alliance, O., a former pastor, took charge of the communion service in the morning following the preaching service.

NEWCASTLE BUSINESS MAN DIES

Newcastle, Ind., Oct. 8.—George Brenneman, retired business man, died today aged 64. He was engaged in the manufacture of furniture for many years.

WIFE SHOT; MAN SLEEPS.

Wealthy Indiana Woman Is Found Dead; Mystery In Case.

Shelbyville, Ind., Oct. 8.—Mrs. Laura Ayres, 50 years of age, one of the wealthiest women in Shelbyville, was found dead in bed early Sunday morning with a bullet in her brain. The bullet had entered just in front of the right ear and a revolver lay on the floor.

Charles J. Ayres, her husband, says he slept in an adjoining room, but heard no shot. He notified Mrs. Mary Armbruster, in whose home Mr. and Mrs. Ayres occupied apartments.

His voice was free from emotion when he announced that he believed his wife had shot herself during the night and asked Mrs. Armbruster to go into the room and investigate. Mrs. Armbruster notified the neighbors, who in turn told the authorities.

Mrs. Armbruster says she heard some kind of a report between 2 and 3 o'clock, but she was not sufficiently awake to distinguish it.

Mrs. Ayres told a friend Saturday afternoon that she intended to get a divorce because her husband was squandering her fortune and that they had had frequent quarrels. She told her brother-in-law the same thing Saturday and started home with him, saying she would not live longer with Ayres, but changed her mind and returned home.

Officers are investigating the case on the theory that Mrs. Ayres was murdered, but no charge has been made against any one.

SMALL DANGER OF A CEMENT TRUST

GOVERNMENT REPORT ON MAGNITUDE OF INDUSTRY.

Combination Impractical Because of Wide Distribution of Deposits of Raw Materials.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—A bulletin issued by the geological survey on the "concentration of cement" interests declares that "setting aside as impracticable the question of trusts and combinations based on monopoly of raw materials, it can be said that there is noticeable a certain concentration of interests in the cement industry and that this probably will become more marked year by year. The eighty-eight plants in existence in 1905 are owned by seventy-eight companies and several of these nominally independent companies are closely connected by ownership."

The bulletin continues:

"The nature of the cement industry renders it improbable that any combination or non-competitive arrangement can be carried to such a point as to result in a monopoly of the industry and permanent high prices.

"Good raw materials are so widely distributed in the United States that there is hardly a county which could not produce Portland cement if prices were forced high enough. The only limitation now on the erection of cement plants is the fact that the great cost makes the ventures prohibitive for the individual or for the small firm.

"Of the seventy-eight companies, fifteen produced over two-thirds of the entire American Portland cement output. Seven of these showed an annual output of over 1,000,000 barrels each, and these seven together produced somewhat over half of the entire output of the country. The five largest companies together produced about the same percentage of the American cement output that the United States corporation does of the American output of pig iron. The cement industry is at present, therefore, in a more concentrated condition than was the iron and steel industry at the date of formation of the steel corporation, but further concentration to such a point as to bring about unfairly high prices, does not seem practicable."

READY FOR BIG GAMES.

Magnates, Officials, and Umpires Are Gathered in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8.—Preliminary to the world's championship base ball games which begin here tomorrow, members of the national commission, members of the Chicago National and American league teams, the umpires and others directly concerned met here today. Rules governing the series and the importance of preserving decorum on the field were among the matters thoroughly discussed. The advance sale of seats makes it a foregone conclusion that a record breaking crowd will be present when play is begun in the National league park at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Anticipating that thousands must be turned away from the gates two local newspapers have leased several of the largest halls in the city, where those disappointed at the park may receive by wire prompt reports of every play made.

Pessimism.

[Rondeau redouble.]

I'S pretty hard to get along today;
The world is getting rotten, don't you think?
I've heard a lot of people lately say
That everything is going on the blink.

And so it's up to me to spill some ink
On pessimism. That's the proper lay,
For themes are scarce. I say it with a wink—
It's pretty hard to get along today.

"It didn't always seem to be that way.
Life used to be a radiant, rosy pink.
And now it looks to me like dappled gray.
The world is getting rotten, don't you think?

"Dame Fortune's given me the rinky dink.
It's twenty-three for mine; me to the bay.
Now, honest, wouldn't that drive you to drink?"
I've heard a lot of people lately say.

They've said it; yes. But is it true?
Nay, nay!
To Fortune! Come and let your glasses clink!
Why, what a shine idea to convey—
That everything is going on the blink!

This is the last time that I'll ever tinker
With a rhyme like this. Hooray!
Hooray!
It's done—except this last—this missing link—
Hast ever done a rondeau redouble?
It's pretty hard!

What He Needed to Know.

As the ocean liner was entering the narrow channel the president of the steamship company, a nervous, fussy individual, came up to the pilot, a whiskered old salt who had spent most of his many years on the sea.

"I suppose you know all the dangerous places in this channel," suggested the resident.

The pilot, looking straight out into the night, gruffly replied, "Nope."

"You don't!" said the magnate. "Then why on earth are you in charge of that wheel? What do you know?"

"I know where the bad places ain't," replied the old pilot.—Woman's Home Companion.

Under the Table Manners.

It's very hard to be polite
If you're a cat.
When other folks are up at table
Eating all that they are able,
You are down upon the mat
If you're a cat.

You're expected just to sit
If you're a cat.
Not to let them know you're there
By scratching at the chair
Or a light, respectful pat,
If you're a cat.

You are not to make a fuss
If you're a cat,
Though there's fish upon the plate,
You're expected just to wait,
Wait politely on the mat,
If you're a cat!

His Decision.

The following anecdote is told of a professor in a western university:

One day while walking with a friend in San Francisco the professor and his companion became involved in an argument as to which was the handsomer man of the two. Not being able to arrive at a settlement of the question, they agreed, in a spirit of fun, to leave it to the decision of a Chinaman who was seen approaching them. The matter being laid before him, the oriental then considered long and carefully; then he announced in a tone of finality, "Both are worse."—Harper's Weekly.

LLOYD.

Miss Isabelle Reed Lloyd, principal of the Clay school and one of Fort Wayne's best known public school teachers, died at 2:45 o'clock Sunday morning at her home, 441 East Berry street, after an extended illness from a liver complication. Miss Lloyd's health had been failing for about two years, though it was not until less than two weeks ago that she was compelled to abandon active direction of her school work and remain at home. Friday night her case became so critical that it was realized that the end could not be long deferred.

Miss Lloyd was about 58 years of age. She was born in Pennsylvania, a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John P. Lloyd, her father being a pioneer clergyman of the Presbyterian church. While the daughter was still very young the parents removed to Galion, Ohio, where she received her early education, and later attended a seminary at Delaware, Ohio. In 1882 Miss Lloyd came to Fort Wayne and shortly thereafter took up the work of teaching in the public schools. She was first an instructor in the Jefferson school and later was made principal of the Hanna school, but for the past ten or twelve years had been principal of the Clay school, where twelve teachers were under her direction. Miss Lloyd ranked very high in her profession and her career as a teacher was uniformly successful. She was a woman of lofty character, fine intellect and kindly disposition and enjoyed in the largest measure the respect and love of her pupils and her associates, professionally and socially. Her parents spent the closing years of their lives in Fort Wayne, Rev. Lloyd dying in 1896 and his wife six years later. Surviving relatives include a brother, T. M. Lloyd, of the Wayne Dry Goods company, and a sister, Mrs. Mary L. Parker, both of this city. Miss Lloyd was a devoted member of the First Presbyterian church.

Funeral services from the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. B. Master, assisted by Rev. Dr. D. W. Moffat. The Clay school will be closed Tuesday afternoon as a mark of respect to the memory of Miss Lloyd.

THE SECRET

It is a matter of speculation among the majority of well-dressed men as to just what causes that "something" in the character and appearance of our clothes, so often described as "well bred" and "aristocratic."

The quality of the fabrics is, of course, apparent, but that does not fully explain their manifest superiority over other ready-for-wear clothes.

If you knew our clothes throughly, intimately, as we do; knew of the little details, niceties of handtailoring and fashioning embodied in each garment, you would know that "quality" is the secret—QUALITY all the way through.

Come in today and spend some of your leisure time looking over some of the styles we are showing in fall and winter suits and overcoats. There is no obligation to buy attached. We will gladly fit you, too. The chances are you will want that suit or overcoat quite soon.

TUMORS CONQUERED

SERIOUS OPERATIONS AVOIDED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the Case of Mrs. Fannie D. Fox.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse monthly periods, accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice if you will write her about yourself. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine. Eighteen months ago my periods stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly that I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician and was told that I had a tumor and would have to undergo an operation.

"Soon after I read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed the tumor is entirely gone. I have been examined by a physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my periods around once more, and I am entirely well."—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut Street, Bradford, Pa.

MONEY SLAVE HAS OIL KING'S PITY

ROCKEFELLER SORRY FOR MAN WHO CAN'T STOP MAKING.

Declares He is Glad He Has Interests and Occupations Outside Money Getting.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 8.—The man whose wealth is "beyond the dream of avarice," and who goes on in his old age adding to the pile because he is a slave to the habit, has the sympathy of John D. Rockefeller.

He thinks the man who has no interests outside of his business is to be pitied. He is glad that since he has quit the drudgery of money making he has found interests and occupations that keep his mind engaged. And the most interesting of his occupations nowadays, he declares, is the giving away of money.

Since his return from Europe Mr. Rockefeller has come completely out of the shell which for years no man penetrated, and now is the most affable subject an interviewer could desire. He was in a particularly affable mood just before leaving this city for New York, when he expressed sorrow for the incurable dollar grubbing and discussed the burden which countless charities lay upon a man like himself.

"I am thankful," he said to the reporter who caught him in a communicative mood, "that I learned early to take an interest in other fields than business, so, when I was able to shift more and more active business cares from my shoulders to those of other men, I could do so without regret, for I had other fields of activity awaiting my attention which have proved of absorbing interest. I regard it as of the greatest importance that the man of business should guard against his business monopolizing him to the exclusion of all other fields of life."

Office Never Sees Him Now.

He declared that he has not entered the New York offices of the Standard Oil company at 26 Broadway in eight years. He has never set foot inside the big office building in Cleveland that bears his name, although it represents the investment of more than $1,000,000.

For many years, though the world has heard little of it, his friends say, Mr. Rockefeller's principal occupation has been giving away money. They say he detests the publicity attached to his gifts, especially that given his annual presents to Chicago university, and tells this story of his charitable methods:

Mr. Rockefeller went to church one night to find that a report on the contributions of the congregation to charity had been prepared for circulation, perhaps for publication, and his name headed this list. He protested, was overruled, and then and there he became an anonymous contributor for the larger part of his tithes. Members of the congregation were no longer able to point to his large contributions, although the total receipts somehow rose to the usual point. The pastor sought him to urge him to continue to give as in the past. To his pastor, but to no other man, Mr. Rockefeller told what he was doing, and how for publication his donations had dwindled. In reality he was giving more.

Hounded by Money Seekers.

Years ago men and institutions found Mr. Rockefeller's purse was easy to open if they could satisfy him that the investment would effect its object. They descended upon him by battalions, the people who collect money for charitable and public purposes. The rush overwhelmed him after he had transferred his headquarters from Cleveland to New York and he found it impossible personally to investigate the countless claims made upon him. On his experiences at that time Mr. Rockefeller now looks with a good deal of humor.

"The good people who wanted me to help them with their good work," he said, "seemed to come to New York in crowds. They brought their trunks and lived with me. I was glad to see them, too, for they were good people and earnest—they were all earnest. So they talked to me at the breakfast table, and they rode down town with me so as to miss no opportunity. When I left my office in the evening they were waiting to ride home with me on the elevated. And they told me about the qualifications of the charities and organizations they represented during the ride.

"At dinner they talked to me, and after dinner, when a little nap on a comfortable lounge or a restful chair and a quiet family chat seemed about the most desirable occupation until bedtime, these good people would pull up their chairs and begin, 'Now, Mr. Rockefeller'—then they would tell their story.

Is Forced to Hide at Last.

"Well, I worked pretty hard at business in those days. I liked these good people, every one of them. I respected their earnestness, and I really wanted to help them all. But there was only one of me and they were a crowd—a crowd increasing in numbers every day. I wanted to retain personal supervision of what little I did in the way of giving, but I also wanted to avoid a breakdown. So I put these matters into other hands, reluctantly."

It is not the Rockefellers who entertain personal appeals, even from friends who are acting on behalf of persons, churches, or institutions for whom and for which they feel able to vouch. All approaches for charity must be made through the regular channel. Despite this fact people still come clamoring at Rockefeller's own door with appeals. He speaks of this with surprise.

"For seventeen years," he said, "I have followed my rule not to take up these applications personally. And still they keep coming. I wonder, if I had been dead for that length of time, if they still would be seeking me so persistently."

Hard to Keep Rule He Made.

And then he told of the difficulties he had keeping this rule of his when he first made it.

While Rockefeller strictly observes the rule which he laid down seventeen years ago for his own protection, he has yet managed to retain the luxury of personal giving to a large extent. All cases where Mr. Rockefeller or Mrs. Rockefeller have a personal knowledge of the circumstances are handled by him. He takes them from the committee's hands from the outset.

The number of people who have merely known the Rockefellers in former years and who consider that sufficient basis for appealing to them in all their troubles is as remarkable as the reception these appeals receive. For Mr. Rockefeller seems to find his greatest delight in assisting such cases.

Mothers, be sure and use Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for your children while cutting teeth. It is the best remedy of all. my-eod-w

Four Days Time

When a young man reaches a state of nervousness bordering upon hysteria, starts at any little sound, constantly in fear that something is going to happen, it is time to find out what the trouble is.

Mr. J. B. Funk, 402 S. 5th str., Springfield, Ill., employed by the Wabash R. R. Co., reached his employment each day feeling that he was in no condition, physically or mentally, to perform his duties properly. He went about his work in a mechanical manner, could not concentrate his mind, and he lived in constant fear of losing his position. Doctors and medicines afforded him no relief, yet Quaker Herb Extract in four days time, benefited him more than anything ever prescribed. Today he is an entirely well man, cured of an aggravated case of stomach, liver and kidney trouble that brought on his nervous condition.

Quaker Herb Extract, a compound extracted from herbs, roots, barks, berries, leaves and blossoms, is an old and well known specific for stomach, liver and kidney complaints, and acts directly on these organs, expelling all disease germs and impurities from the entire system. It is purely vegetable and contains no injurious drugs or poisons.

This medicine has proven all claims made for it by the great Dunn.

Mr. Cleveland's opinion might not help much one way or the other in the New York campaign, but an expression of what he thinks of Mr. Hearst would be an interesting addition to the literature of the conflict.

Cubans are organizing an annexation movement. All very well, but it won't get there half as fast as another insurgent movement would. About one more uprising and Peacemaker Bill Taft would have the island moored to the tail end of Florida before a gun could be fired.

Twenty American marines disarmed two hundred Cuban rebels and arrested the ringleaders when the insurgents rode into a suburb of Puerta Principe and began to flourish their trusty machetes and threaten trouble. That is about the right porportion if worst comes to worst.

The president is said to be ready to leap into the breach in New York state in case Hearst becomes too strong. When the presidential leap is made it will afford a good line on the Hearst strength, which certainly will be worth attending to if the white house must be conscripted to save the day.

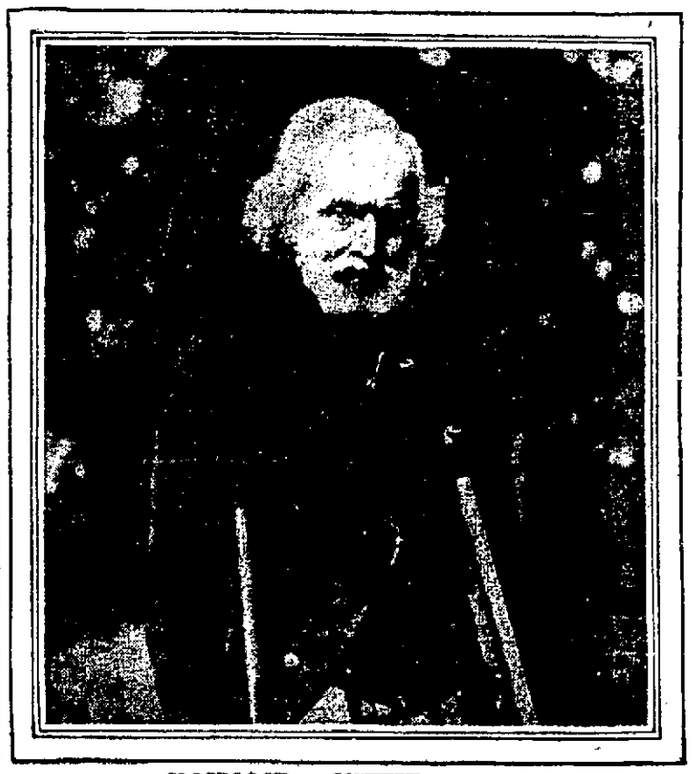
The great railway systems are coming down to the two-cent fare basis voluntarily. Making allowance for rational considerations of the public good on the part of the railroads, there remains a bit of margin upon which to rest the supposition that the railroads want to beat the legislatures of several states to it. And then there may, perhaps, be the fear that when it comes to legislative rate-cutting the knife may go below the two-cent level.

That member of the Indiana pharmacy board who is charged with trying to sell advance copies of the examination lists selected a mighty poor time to get found out when he allowed himself to be uncovered right in the heat of a campaign.

An incident of last Monday's police court was repeated today. A youth of eighteen years was arraigned on a charge of public intoxication. He had been found helplessly drunk Sunday evening and locked up. After some "sweating" he told the officers where he had procured the intoxicants which made him drunk. This is another high testimonial to the efficiency of Mayor Hosey's law enforcing policy. It is greatly to be hoped that if the saloonkeepers who sold liquor to the lads recently arrested for drunkenness are proved guilty the penalty will be as severe as the law provides. And right here we wish to say to the mayor that even if he is determined not to enforce the 11 o'clock and Sunday laws, it will not be in the least a radical step for him to instruct the police to give special attention to the widespread violation of the laws prohibiting the sale of liquor to minors.

The New York campaign is manifesting such early bitterness as gives promise of something before the fight is over that the word strenuous will not adequately describe. Hearst has already inaugurated his up-state campaign and professes to have gained great encouragement from the manner of welcome he received. Republican Candidate Hughes launches forth on his canvass today and expects to have a sort of whirl-wind time. It is reported that in the centers of population Hearst has been received with unmistakable evidences of lively approval, whereas in the country there has been a reserve, not to say chill, toward him. In the meantime, things wax warm and warmer in Greater New York. Hearst is standing pat on his anti-boss program and the question is whether or not it will cost him more votes than it can gain for him. The election is now four weeks away and the lively attention of the entire country is enlisted in the New York battle. The outcome means many things to both great parties. The Hearst strength is not believed to be diminishing in any quarter, while Hughes is expected to hold his own in his party everywhere, with some accessions from the defections in the democratic party. Hearst's recruits will be of the people who believe in him because of what he stands for and political disappointments and jealousies will have little if anything to do with the additions to the dual Hearst party.

Mark Twain's "Poet Lariat" is Dead at Advanced Age.



BLOODGOOD CUTTER.

Bloodgood Haviland Cutter died a few days ago in his home, Prospect Hill, near Little Neck, L. I., in his ninetieth year. Mr. Cutter was born August 5, 1817, near the house in which he died.

Bloodgood H. Cutter was a picturesque character. He has been immortalized by Mark Twain as the "Poet Lariat" in the latter's "Innocents Abroad." Cutter accompanied Twain on the journey that resulted in the writing of the book.

Mr. Cutter spent all his life in Little Neck, L. I., where he devoted his years to writing of verse under the signature of "The Farmer Poet." His greatest hobby was the collection of trophies pertaining to the colonial period in American history, in which his ancestors all figured. He had in his possession at the time of his death several gorgeous regimentals that had been worn by his ancestors in the early battles of the revolution.

The "Poet Lariat" always maintained an enthusiastic interest in royalty. Kings and queens, princes and princesses appealed to his poetic side. In 1867, on the occasion of Czar Alexander's visit to the Black sea squadron, Cutter, along with Mark Twain and others of the "Innocents Abroad," met him personally at a great reception given on board one of the vessels. He was also at one time received by Queen Victoria.

At each Fourth of July celebration in Little Neck for the last seventy years Mr. Cutter figured. He invariably read patriotic verses composed especially in honor of the day.

In late years Mr. Cutter had practically led the life of a hermit, his only diversions being the annual Independence day celebration and the Mineola fair. His countless poems were dedicated to nearly every person of prominence in the country. He was a widower, his wife having died about fifty years ago. He is not known to have had any close relatives. For the last three years Mr. Cutter, a sufferer from rheumatism, had been a cripple and in continued ill health. His odd jobs were done for him by a man named Porphine, ninety-five years old, whom Cutter made follow his own mode of life.

KILLS GIRL'S MARRIED FRIEND.

Stepfather Shoots Minneapolis Man He Had Warned.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 8.—William A. Dowell, 51, was shot dead yesterday afternoon by John Quirk, stepfather of Bessie Squires, 21. The shooting occurred on the steps of the Quirk home, 901 Chicago avenue, as Dowell and Miss Squires were returning from a walk. They were met at the door by Quirk, who shot Dowell, pulled Miss Squires into the house, and then sat down in the parlor to await the coming of the police. After lying on the lawn for an hour, Dowell was taken to the city hospital, where he died later. Dowell was married, but has not lived with his wife for several years, although they never have been divorced. Quirk declares he had warned Dowell many times to stop paying attentions to his stepdaughter.

POOR HOOSIERS SAGE HEIRS.

Widow and Hard Working Farmer Each Will Receive $50,000.

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 8.—From poverty to riches will be the case of at least two Indiana heirs who are to participate in the estate of Russell Sage, each receiving $50,000. One of these heirs is a niece of the great financier, living at Columbus, Ind., who has been living on a pension of $12 per month.

She is Mrs. Emily Chadwick, a widow, who long has been in straitened circumstances, and to her the bequest of $25,000, which later was doubled to avoid litigation, comes more like a dream than reality. It will make her one of the wealthiest women in Columbus.

From a farmer of limited means, with credit none too good, Elizur Sage, of Jasper county, nephew of the dead millionaire, will be able to write his check for liberal sums. He is expecting the arrival of the check tomorrow.

For years Elizur Sage has struggled on a rented farm, taxed to his utmost capacity to raise the sum necessary for rent and to support his family.

She declares she had not been with Day, but she left a note for her father when she went away saying she was going with him. She was divorced from Barnes a few days before she went away. Mayor Zollinger has appointed A. C. Trentman and Montgomery Hamilton as delegates to the Mississippi River convention to be held at St. Louis October 26.

Several gentlemen in this city have recently received notice from the street commissioner's assistant to appear at a certain place with a pick and shovel on the 9th day of October, 1881. As the above name day occurs on Sunday, the persons are at a loss to know whether to put in the day by going to church or by working out their poll tax.

The reception given by the members of the Entre Nous club at Fox's parlors last evening was a very elegant and pleasant affair. Twenty-two couples were present. A [illegible] andid supper was served and the music was furnished by Prof. Reineke's orchestra.

As soon as the roof is placed on and the flooring laid in the new Catholic library, which will be about the middle of November, a grand fair will be given, preparations for which are now being made. It will surpass anything of the kind in the history of Fort Wayne.

TILLMAN PROPHET OF BIG RACE WAR

PREDICTS NEXT DECADE WILL SEE BLOODY CONFLICT.

On North He Places Blame for Hatred Between Whites and Blacks—Says Lynching Will Go On.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 8.—In a characteristic speech to 4,000 persons, by whom he was cheered repeatedly, Senator Tillman declared that the south was on the verge of a great race war. He said:

"There are some who say that the race problem will settle itself, but I make the prediction that in less than ten years—I fear less than five—there will be an immense number of bloody race riots, north and south, beside which the Atlanta riot will pale into insignificance.

"I lay down the following proposition, which cannot be disputed:

"First—The white men of the south are united and determined as never before to maintain white supremacy, politically and socially, in every part of every southern state.

"Second—The negroes were never more intent on contesting in every way they dare this position of the whites, the republican national government aiding and abetting this idea.

"Third—Race hatred in every form is growing in intensity with both races.

"Fourth—Lynching for criminal assault will continue as long as the crime is committed. The escape of the guilty inflames the whites, precipitates riots, and causes innocent negroes to suffer.

Miscegnation Must Cease.

"Fifth—Amalgamation is the hope and ultimate purpose of the negroes. White men are rendering them great aid in this by intimacy with negro women. The line must be drawn as sternly between white men and negro women as between black men and white women.

"Sixth—The burning issue is how to prevent and not to avenge assault. Lynching has failed. The superior race should protect many millions of innocent negroes from false teachers and bad leaders, who are rapidly driving the whites to a desperation that means a race war which can result only in the destruction of the weaker race."

After considering every conceivable plan for the protection of white women against negro assailants he concluded there was only one effective way—the establishing of the European system of passport, coupled with a large increase of the officers of the law.

He referred to the roving negroes, declaring they are workkmen at saw mills, on railroad gangs, etc., who are always of the most depraved character, the "worthless scum of the race—these are the creatures who are defiling our women and precipitating riots."

Blames North for Brutes.

He declared the only place for these was among the northerners, whose scheme of reconstruction had produced them.

He declared if all were shot like wild beasts the country would be better off. But that was unlawful. Therefore, when they were unable to produce passports, they should be placed in chain gangs until reformed or until they left the country.

He said no further concession should be made to various objectors, as "we must cease to ponder, else we will soon be forced to go to shooting.

"And negroes, too," he continued, "will begin to kill when they begin to believe the color of a skin is a death warrant, regardless of good behavior."

He declared the white men of the south should go ahead and do what they believed was right in this matter regardless "of all Yankees between Cape Cod and hell."

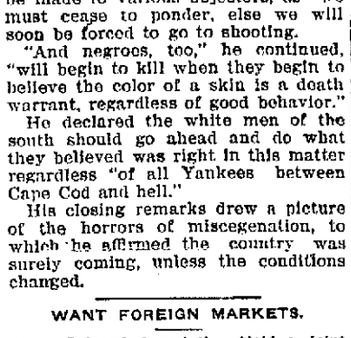
His closing remarks drew a picture of the horrors of miscegenation, to which he affirmed the country was surely coming, unless the conditions changed.

WANT FOREIGN MARKETS.

Stock Raisers' Association Hold a Joint Convention.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 8.—A joint convention of the American National Live Stock association, the Cattle Raisers association and the Corn Belt Meat Producers' association wes held here today and plans were discussed for securing a better foreign market for American live stock products. The call for the convention says in part:

"It is of great importance to the live stock industry that more extended foreign markets be secured in order to dispose of our increasing surplus of meat products and insure good prices for our live stock at home. The United States raises more live stock than it can consume and on the other hand there is a marked scarcity of meat in many continental countries. We should be able to supply this shortage abroad. Under fair and reasonable international trade relations we believe that a larger proportion of our surplus meat products could be sold to these nations that need them, thus benefitting both ourselves and the European consumers."



This is only one of the many attractive designs we carry. Has every feature that goes to make a good economical baker; easily kept clean and blacked.

If you want a Range on legs, something you can sweep under, here it is.

When the inimitable David Sullivan was on the vaudeville stage, he made his appearance before the footlights in a manner indicating he was trying to ward off the bite of a dog, and the following colloquy ensued:

"Did you hear that dog bark?"

"Don't you know that barking don't bite?"

"Well, you know that and I know that but the dog don't know it."

Which reminds us much of our own business here. We have advantages possessed by no other stores in the union, making us indeed the most extensive buyers in America. Customers who trade here recognize the advantage immediately, but customers who are attracted by the advantages of our competitors and customers who fail to investigate, must be told—and told again in order that they will ultimately visit the Fort Wayne Outfitters' Co. and profit accordingly. We know that we have advantages but the people wouldn't know it unless we told them so—unless they investigate on their own account, and so we repeat the story of our advantages in order that all may participate, or at least investigate. PLAN ON DENATURED ALCOHOL.

Rules Published for the New Law Effective January 1.

Washington, Oct. 8.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Yerkes, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, yesterday issued the departmental regulations controlling the making and handling of denatured alcohol and its uses. These regulations render effective a law enacted at the last session of congress, which provides for the withdrawal from bond, tax free, of domestic alcohol when rendered unfit for beverages or liquid medicines uses by the admixture of suitable denaturing materials, and for the use of the denatured article in the arts an industries, and for fuel, light and power. The law becomes effective January 1, 1907.

This legislation is in harmony with similiar enactemnts adopted by nearly all foreign countries.

In discussing the new regulations yesterday Mr. Yerkes said:

"The prime object to be attained by this legislation is to furnish, for purely domestic uses, and also for what might be called industrial domestic purposes, heat, light and power, cheap alsohol with the hope thereby there will be a reduction of expenses in these departments.

This denatured alcohol will be a competitor with illuminating oil, gasoline and coal. It will also furnish to manufacturers alcohol free of the heavy internal revenue tax now levied. This tax amounts to about $2 per wine gallon on alcohol at 180 degrees proof.

"Denatured alcohol will supplant very largely wood alcohol for both domestic and manufacturing purposes, as it will be cheaper. While the price of the completely denatured product cannot now be definitely stated, it is believed it will not be more than 35 cents a gallon. With regard to the specially denatured alcohol, the price will vary according to the cost of the denaturing ingredients selected to meet the necessities of the manufacturing industries."

ALLEGED KIDNAPPER FREE.

Little Girl Victim of Outrage Fails to Identify Stableman.

New York, Oct. 8.—Suspected of having been concerned in an alleged attempt to kidnap Miss Eugenie Ladenburg, daughter of Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg at Westbury, L. I., last Friday evening, James Brady, a stableman, was under arrest in this city today. Brady was arrested yesterday on a minor charge but answered the description of one of Miss Ladenburg's assailants so well that the child's mother was asked today to bring her to this city and see whether she could identify him.

Miss Ladenburg was held up while riding alone on her pony on her way home from a fair where she had exhibited the pony. Two men in a carriage who met her at a lonely part of the road, dragged her off the pony's back and when she screamed struck her several severe blows on the head. Her cries brought others to her assistance. The two men got away in their carriage, leaving the little girl unconscious.

Miss Ladenburg went to police court and saw Brady among a group of prisoners, but was unable to point out the men who had made attempts to kidnap her. Brady was discharged from custody.

COTTON MILLS HANDICAPPED.

Even Better Wages Fail to Overcome Scarcity of Help.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 8.—Cotton mills agents in Rhode Island complain of a scarcity of help in some departments and assert that in this respect the increase of wages granted early last summer did not have the beneficial result hoped for. The increase has not thus far drawn back a sufficient number of those who left the mills when wages were lower and when there was dissatisfaction among the workmen for other reasons. In some of the mills at the present time, more looms are stopped than has been the case heretofore in the history of the industry in this state. In one large mill, there are said to be 600 looms idle, where a few years ago the number of applicants for work exceeded the demand. A fifth of the looms in another large mill are said to be stopped for want of operatives.

This scarcity of labor has brought about keen competition among mill officials in offering inducements to families of workers to become permanent help.

JUDGING FINE STOCK.

American Royal Cattle Show Begins at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 8.—Hereford and Shorthorn cattle and blooded draft horses occupied the attention of the judges today, the first day of the eighth annual royal cattle show, which is to continue throughout the week at the show pavilions at the Kansas City stock yards. While the fine cattle was being judged on one side of the ring, the big blooded horses were competing on the opposite side. The cattle shown today were aged bulls and the entries in each class were large and the competition keen. The Galloway and Aberdeen-Angus aged bulls will be shown before another class is brought into the ring. A feature of the show this year is an exhibition of prize winning Shetland and hackney ponies in harness.

"There's a Reason."

Test to Apply in Purchasing Fall Petticoat of Silk

Silk petticoats are as essential to a complete wardrobe as a street suit, or a walking hat, and few women nowadays are ever without one or more of them. Much depends upon the choice of silk underskirts, for the models shown in the smart shops are made in a variety of styles and colorings, from plain or two-toned effects to vivid plaids, and all are fashionable and pretty, and moreover there is a great difference in the material.

Flounces, ruffles and elaborate trimmings will be used on all these skirts, whether they are made of striped or plain materials. The only variations in the new petticoats is in the cutting of the flounces, for some of them will be simply round, while others will be shaped, that is, high in the back and graduated toward the front, so that directly in the center they will be little more than ruffles.

The wide circular flounce that starts at the knee will be the greater favorite, according to a buyer of a silk underskirt department in one of the large stores, for she declares that they are more dressy, and so will be more in demand.

"Flounces—the principal part of a skirt—are more decorated this fall than ever before," says she, "for practically none of them are plain. Some are accordion pleated, others ornamented with rows of pinking, fluitings, ruffles, small, of course, while those that some nearest being simple are so corded that they are exceedingly fussy.

Pinking Used as Trimming.

"Many of the models in fancy striped and plaid silks are trimmed with pinking of a contrasting material that gives the garment an individuality few have possessed before.

"One of the most striking examples of this sharp contrast made by the trimming is shown in a dainty petticoat made of alternate stripes of fine black and white checks and bright pink roses, with a flounce decorated with four rows of pinking made from dull black silk. Another strikingly pretty underskirt, made of two toned or changeable red silk, with a wide flounce ornamented with narrow dark green ruffles, will undoubtedly be a favorite for street use. Plaid petticoats, with rows of shirring in plain colors on the flounces, are other styles that illustrate the contrast in decoration.

"Silk ruffles and pinkings are not the only kinds of trimmings that are to be smart this fall, for hand embroidered flounces and those decorated with medallions or inserts of real lace will be quite as fashionable. The hand work will be mostly eyelet, with floral or simple scroll designs wrought round it to make a continuous pattern. With the lace trimming, some plain and a few fanciful devices are followed on the flounces. One pattern with lace has inserts of Cluny run in perfectly plain rows around the flounces, while another—quite an elaborate model—has them put in diamond shapes. Where medallions are used the silk beneath them is cut away, giving a pretty and Frenchy effect.

How to Tell Good Silk.

"While any shade of silk petticoat will be good form this year, those in plaids, changeable, two tones, stripes or novelties will be more stylish than browns, reds, blues, grays and black in plain colors.

"In selecting a silk underskirt I would never advise a woman to buy one that costs less than six dollars, for while cheaper ones may look quite as good, the quality of the material cannot be such that the garment will give satisfaction.

The length of time a silk underskirt can be worn depends entirely upon the individual wearer and the amount of usage, for while one woman can keep a skirt in good condition, wearing it constantly for six months, another will have a petticoat in shreds in two months, or even less.

"In buying a skirt I would suggest that soft, rather than taffeta silk be chosen, for the latter undoubtedly has better lasting qualities, though it is not so desirable as the former, because it clings to the body. Be sure there is a good quality of material in a petticoat before purchasing. This can be readily told by the feel, at least persons familiar with silks know as soon as they touch the material whether or not it is good. A taffeta that rustles between the fingers is best, while in a soft silk, the softer and more pliable it is the better the grade of material."

PERFECTION BISCUIT COMP'Y.

Design to Remodel Frock

By Mrs. Jane Ford.

Remodelling undoubtedly takes more time than cutting a garment from the fresh cloth, nevertheless, it is a great money saver, and every woman looks with pride upon the little dress she has fashioned from a skirt that she could not longer wear or a coat from one of her own outer garments that was no longer considered up-to-date, and women with more time than means gladly welcome the opportunity to do just this sort of thing.

Made over garments, to be entirely satisfactory, must be constructed of good material in the beginning, and if there are little folks to whom to pass the gowns and coats on, a woman will never regret spending the extra money for them, for they will keep their shape so long as they hold together. This does not mean the buying of the most expensive goods on the market, for many materials are costly simply because they are novelties. Staple materials, such as serge, cashmere, henriettas, challies, ladies' cloth and broadcloth, may be had in good qualities at reasonable prices.

After having ripped the garment which is to be refashioned, it must be thoroughly cleansed, and the majority of materials will stand a good soap and water bath. Silk should be washed in gasolene. Place the pieces in the bottom of a deep pan and pour the fluid over them; cover it tightly and let stand for an hour. Wring them out, rinse again in fresh gasolene, then hang on the line to dry.

Silk waists may be cleansed in this way without ripping, but it must be done in the open air, away from any heat or light, on account of the inflammability of the liquid.

For black woolen material soap bark is good. To use this pour a quart of boiling water over ten cents worth of soap bark and let stand for one hour, then strain through a soft cloth. To three gallons of warm water add this liquid, and in it wash the cloth. If the black has become rusty, add a good sized bottle of blueing to the rinse water.

To wash colored materials shave up half a pound of white soap and over it pour one quart of boiling water. This will make a soft soap, which can be used in the warm water in which the material is washed. Never rub the soap on wool or rub wool on a wash board, but lift up and down in the water and squeeze through the hands. After it is thoroughly cleansed, rinse through warm water and wring out. Hang the material up to partly dry, then press it by laying a cotton cloth over it and ironing with a hot iron until dry.

It is most important in remodelling to see to it that more money is not spent for trimming than would cost to buy new material. This difficulty can easily be overcome if due consideration is given to the selection of the pattern. One with an unusual number of pleats should not be considered, and it should also be borne in mind that it is well to have a few pleats, as they offer an excellent excuse to hide piecing. When this is necessary, the seams should be opened and pressed flat with a moderately hot iron. It is well to choose a pattern with a yoke and deep cuffs, as this gives ample opportunity to work in small pieces.

The present vogue for strapping helps out remodelling in many ways, as well as the popular guimpe. For example, take a dark blue serge skirt that is to be remodelled after the fashion of the little dress shown in the illustration. The yoke and cuffs should be cut from a fancy silk, and for this there is quite likely something in the piece bag suitable. Or, perhaps, a piece of plan red serge may be found that will cut these portions of the dress. If there is plenty of the blue serge then straps may be cut from some other material and stitched to the dress in the same way as the braid shown.

To make the guimpe dress there are lots of pretty designs, among which is the scallop and dot design, so well liked just now, which is easily done by any woman who can make the ordinary buttonhole stitch. Guimpes can be fashioned from such a variety of materials and of such small pieces that it is usually only necessary to resort to the piece bag for the purpose.

If a mother desires her child to be really well dressed she must study her figure with as much care as she does her own. Horizontal trimmings are particularly becoming to tall, slender figures, and plaids are equally so. For the short, stout girl, straight lines and stripes must be adhered to, and all fluffy ruffles avoided. One will be equally as well dressed as the other, only they must adhere to entirely different styles.

Long coats are generally liked, and in the plain designs are always more elegant, more attention being paid to the lines than the trimming. Fur lined garments have lost their hold, and in the best coats intended for cold days the quilted linings are being shown. Separate neck pieces will have their place as the cold weather advances, and muffs shown are larger than ever.

The Forest Park company today let the contracts for three new houses which will be erected in a short time on the new addition to the city. The houses will be six and seven-rooms and will be fitted up with all modern improvements.

Inexpensive Ways of Framing Small Pictures

Where many small pictures are used in a room they should be artistically framed in a variety of harmonious colors so that they will add to the surroundings, instead of giving them a monotonous or really disorderly appearance. To obtain a pleasing effect where four or five dozen prints, kodak pictures, photographs and posters are to be used in decorating the walls requires both study and tact, for each picture needs a certain setting to show it to the best advantage, and where there are so many it is difficult to put on frames that will correspond and yet keep uppermost the individuality of each subject.

To frame these many pictures successfully and economically the best plan is to decide on a color scheme that will not jar with the hangings, rugs or furniture, especially if the room is small, for if the various tones do not correspond the apartment will lack the soothing effect that should prevail in any living room, particularly where one sleeps.

If dark green, brown or soft reds can be used some dainty and smart effects can be had by making the frames of denim or grass cloth, that come in pretty shades in any of the plain colors. Chintz or cretonnes will be much used this fall for framing small pictures, and if diminutive designs in soft, shadowy tones are selected a photograph or bright colored print will be quite attractive and unusual.

If a person has small pieces or scraps of silks, in moire, satin, plain or brocade, or even ribbons, stunning mats may be made for colored photographs, and putting a glass over and framing them passepartout fashion they will look as handsome as if it had cost a small fortune. Just now it is a fad to use gilt guimpe on small pictures to give the appearance of a gold frame, and when carefully arranged over the edges of a glass this material is most attractive. As it takes but a small quantity to surround a miniature-like photograph material for one or two of these may be purchased for twenty-five cents. A backing of cardboard covered with silk or ribbon to match and a standard made in the same way will complete an effective frame.

Some exquisite frames can be made for a really trifling cost if a woman can do hand embroidery, especially the French work, or if flowers can be made from narrow baby ribbons. The latter, worked in a wild rose design or forget-me-nots in light blue, will be beautiful on a cream or white silk or satin background. The French embroidery done on white linen in either white or light colors makes an attractive frame for a bedroom, and where five or six pictures, all co-related or of the same subject are put into such surroundings, either singly or in a long frame with an individual place for each, they make an attractive ornament for the space over a bureau, dressing table, or even above a door casement.

Paper frames in red, green and brown, all ready for the picture, may be bought for ten and fifteen cents apiece, according to size. Wall paper—some of the better qualities in two tones, or with a flowered design—makes pretty frames, especially if the color scheme in the room is a light tan or in a soft blue or pink.

Plain wood frames are smart this fall, and if bought in the white wood may be stained green, brown or any shade desired, and will be just as effective as if purchased in the natural wood.

Frames are small this year, and for the larger pictures are made on almost severe lines, following the mission idea, the glass or inside space occupied by the subject being either square or oval. The small frames for miniature-like pictures are more ornate, and some of them have daintily rounded edges, with the portion surrounding the pictures in curves and scallops.

Ribbon Trimming to Be Largly Employed This Fall

(By A. T. Ashmore.)

Ribbon trimming proved so popular this summer that it is to be employed to no little extent during the autumn and coming winter. The nets show the chief evidence of the popularity of ribbon as adornment, but any number of waist house gowns and even elaborate evening dresses depend almost entirely upon figured taffeta and brocade ribbon for the finishing effect. In truth, many separate waists are former wholly of wide ribbon, while with some of the prettiest chiffon and lace skirts are waists solely of ribbon and trimmed with lace or chiffon like the skirt.

One immense advantage in brocade and flowered ribbon is that it frequently makes certain colors possible that otherwise would be most unbecoming. For example, many women to whom ordinarily pale blue is most unbecoming can look exceedingly well in a gown made up with trimmings of pink or red, and vice versa. Pink, which can be trimmed with blue of the latest shade, is generally preferred.

An exceedingly pretty and effective afternoon gown was formed completely of alternate strips of plain blue and bright flowered ribbon. The bodice front and back was a deep shaped yoke of Lierre lace, the silk being bordered with a fine piping of black velvet, and where the material crossed over in front were tiny black velvet soirettes. There was no added belt, but the flowered ribbon about the waist fitted perfectly, fastening across in front below the lace vest. The elbow sleeves were finished off with narrow lace ruchings and little velvet soirettes. The skirt was untrimmed, depending for effect solely upon the contrasting rows of ribbon. The ribbon was a large flower design, with shaded pink and red roses.

This autumn a large number of the handsomest afternoon and evening wraps are trimmed with wide collar and revers, and turned back cuffs of wide ribbon in green. In most cases dull colorings are preferred for wraps, although here and there are seen bright crimson brocades and brilliant blues that are charming at this time of the year. The so-called antique colorings are much in demand among the gay flowered ribbons. For hats ribbon of all possible kinds and colorings plays an important role at the present time.

A Word to Piano Buyers

Artistic pianos cannot result in the ordinary piano factory where the piano is put together of parts bought here and there, wherever they are to be had the cheapest, and of a grade corresponding to the price paid, that is, made of poorly seasoned woods and other materials of low quality. An INSTRUMENT SO CONSTRUCTED IS DEAR AT ANY PRICE.

Every part of the Old Reliable HALLET & DAVIS, Established 1839 and the World Famous KIMBALL PIANOS, Established 1857,

ARE MADE IN THEIR OWN FACTORIES

and are constructed on the highest plan known in piano building by expert mechanics of both Europe and this country, having nothing but the very best that can be procured in every part of their make-up.

While there are upwards of 300 different pianos on the market, there are less than TEN factories that make ALL parts of their instruments. The great majority are simply "assemblers."

You will readily see the care and investigation necessary before you commit yourself to the purchase of a piano.

When you buy a HALLET & DAVIS or KIMBALL piano you take no chance with an experiment. These pianos had an established reputation before many of the present day pianos were in existence, and their guarantee is backed by a capital of $20,000,000.

We sell these pianos at a moderate price and on liberal terms. ALWAYS SEE US BEFORE BUYING.

EDWARD COLEMAN HURT.

Fell From Interurban Car and Was Painfully Bruised and Cut.

Edward Coleman, of this city, was painfully cut and bruised about the face and shoulders, his tongue cut in two and his nose fractured, Sunday afternoon about 4:30 by falling from a Huntington interurban car a short distance west of Taylor street. The injured man was taken to the St. Joseph hospital where his injuries were dressed by Dr. J. M. Dinnen. His wounds are not serious and no bad consequences are feared, although the physician was unable to save the tongue. It is not known whether Mr. Coleman attempted to jump from the car while it was in motion or whether he fell off.

According to the report of the Pittsburg Institute for the Study of Tuberculosis, the hygienic conditions in American factories are, as a rule, far less satisfactory than those in Europe. The report corrects the current notion that a cough always accompanies consumption; in many cases there is little or no cough.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

Catarrh cannot be washed away with sprays, inhalations and such treatment, nor can it be smoked out with medicated tobacco, cigarettes, etc. When you attempt to cure Catarrh with such things you are wasting time and allowing the impurities and poisons in the blood, which produce the disease, to get so firmly rooted as to become not only a disgusting trouble, but a very dangerous one. The annoying symptoms of ringing noises in the ears, "hawking and spitting," headaches, mucus dropping back into the throat, impairment to the senses of taste and smell, and a feeling of general debility, prove that there is a deep-seated cause for Catarrh. This cause is a polluted and unhealthy condition of the blood, and the disease cannot be cured until this is removed. The only way to get rid of Catarrh permanently is to purify the blood, and S. S. S. is the ideal remedy for this purpose. It soon clears the system of all impurities, purges the blood of all catarrhal matter and poisons, and effectually checks the progress of this disgusting and far-reaching disease. S. S. S. puts the blood in perfect order, and as this pure, healthy blood goes to every nook and corner of the body Catarrh is permanently cured. Book with information about Catarrh and medical advice free.

PIANOLA PIANO

A Case Where Imitation Has Proven a Real Help.

WHEN the Pianola Piano was first announced there was a gasp in the Piano world—and a pause while other manufacturers considered what they should do to meet this hitherto unprecedented element of competition.

Competition in selling pianos is keen, more so than in most other lines of trade. When a piano manufacturer loses a sale to a rival he generally knows it. When his salesmen report that sales are going to a competitor in a steadily increasing stream, his anxiety is aroused.

"We must have an interior Player," said the other piano manufacturers in concert. Of course, they could not get the Pianola which the Aeolian Company owned. "Give us the next best Player, give us a good Player, give us any Player"—and there was forthwith a wild scramble.

Imitation of the Pianola Piano has helped its sales. The public is now accustomed to the idea of such an instrument. In a wonderfully short space of time the Pianola Piano has become standardized.

And just here is where the imitation helped the original: People wanted the best interior Player. "I must have the Pianola" meant just one answer—the Pianola Piano.

Our store is the only place in Northern Indiana where it can be obtained.

SHAMROCKS LOSE THE FINAL GAME

AUBURN-GARRETT SHUTS OUT THE LOCAL TEAM.

Williamson Was Effective Throughout the Engagement and Scattered Hits.

The independent base ball season as far as Fort Wayne is concerned, was closed yesterday afternoon with a game at League park between the Shamrocks and the Auburn-Garrett in which Manager Mart Cleary's aggregation stacked up nine large goose eggs while the visitors lugged off seven runs.

In addition to the fact that the Shamrocks could not hit Williamson the team piled up six errors that figured in the run getting and although the DeKalb county aggregation had four they were not greatly to the advantage of the Fort Wayne nine. Maggert landed on a shoot and routed it to Clinton street over the right field fence. The scores:

Billy's Soliloquy.

'Tis the glorious time of all the year,
When plum and peach and grape and pear
Into big jelly jars will go,
And in the pantry in a row
Will make an appetizing show.

When bread in slices, broad and white,
Will be spread thick, quite out of sight,
With juicy jam and jelly sweet,
All nicely fixed for me to eat.
My, oh! But it will be a treat.

And now's the yellow pumpkin's day
When he will to the cellar stray;
Where Cook with carving knife will lie
And slice him up to make a pie
Which I will eat. Oh me, oh my!

And other goodies, too, are here.
That always come this time of year:
Goodies big and goodies small,
The names of which I cannot call;
But you may bet, I'll eat them all.

How Speed "Got Even."

[By William Wallace, Jr.]

It was Speed's first day in the Beeville public school. Beeville was a town of but a few hundred inhabitants, therefore it boasted of only one small frame schoolhouse of two rooms with one teacher for each room. Speed was in the "advanced" room, fourth-reader grade. Not only was this Speed's first day in school, but his second day in the town, for his parents had just moved there from a farm many miles away. Their object in coming to Beeville was to give their son the advantages of an education.

Speed was a good, studious boy, loving his books and anxious to learn all that was to be gained at the little public school, and it was with real pride that he walked into the schoolhouse on the first Monday morning of the fall term with his hair brushed till it shone like a mirror, his face aglow from soap and water and his cheap, well-worn clothes as tidy and neat as could be; while under his arm were his new books, carefully covered with bright print—the thoughtful work of his fond mother.

As soon as the teacher looked at Speed she knew that he was no common boy, that he was a well-reared chap, with a certain refinement and grace of manner which bespoke a gentleman for a father and a lady for a mother, though indications pointed to the fact that they were not counted among the rich, or even the well-to-do.

The last bell had just rung and the straggling pupils were choosing their seats and seat mates amidst a confusion of whispers, shuffling feet and rattling slates and books. Speed, on entering the room, bowed respectfully to the teacher; then waited in the aisle till some seat should be left vacant for him. But there being more pupils than desks many of the seats held two children, and Speed was obliged to wait till the teacher should assign him to a place. At last he found himself seated beside a rough, slovenly dressed boy who looked as though his face was a stranger to water and his hair unacquainted with a comb. When Speed took his end of the seat he kindly smiled an introduction to his seatfellow, who glared back with a defiant air, as if saying: "How dare you, a stranger, intrude yourself upon me, sir?" But Speed did not pay any attention to the rude conduct of his rough companion, but began to place his books neatly in his end of the desk. The rough boy, seeing that he was to be ignored, decided to pick a fuss with Speed, and began by whispering in a loud voice during the singing: "Say, green-goose, where did you git such pretty covers for your books? Th'— look like gurl-baby books. Gee! I'd hate to be a little Lizzie; an' that's what you are."

Still Speed ignored the boy, and drowned his voice by joining in the singing. This infuriated the boy who whispered more loudly, putting his mouth close to Speed's ear and forcing his words upon him: "Say, Lizzie, mamma's darlin' baby-boy, I can lick you at recess with my right hand tied. Do you hear, sissy?"

Speed, not wishing to be so annoyed, turned to the boy and said:

"If you don't like my looks please keep your eyes on either your books or some other point in the room. I'm not going to bother you, and I don't intend that you shall bother me. If you want to get another seat there's one down there on the aisle."

"Ya—yah—yah!" said the boy, sticking his mouth out at Speed and making a wry face. "I got this seat first an' I mean ter set here in it. But you'd better look out for me. I'm the strongest kid in this town an' I kin lick you with one han'. So don't dare to give me any of your country-made sass, Lizzie. Do you hear?"

The teacher was now beginning the examinations in order to arrange the classes, and Speed, with his seat-mate, was called to the blackboard to be tried in "figures," so he made no reply to the boy's taunts. As Speed passed for the fourth grade and the rough boy failed there was cause for more venom from the boy, and as soon as they had taken their seats he held his big geography up in front of his face so that the teacher might not see him and began: "Say, your pap and mam are so dirt poor that they can't squeel, ain't they? My pap says you're stuckup trash. Your mam tries to put on airs, don't she? Well, she can't come that dodge in this here town. We seen you when you moved in yesterday. Your mam, she's —"

"Henry Adams!" cried the teacher, "are you whispering?"

Speed's seat-mate, to whom the teacher spoke, put down his geography, looked directly into the teacher's face and said: "No'm, I'm studyin' my lessons. It's this feller here what's whisperin' all the time to me." And he jerked his head in Speed's direction as he said "this feller."

Speed's face grew crimson, and, rising in the aisle, he said, addressing the teacher: "Please, teacher, I have not whispered to this boy but once, and that was before our arithmetic examination. I asked him to attend to his books and let me alone."

The teacher, knowing Henry from last year's school, and having had some serious difficulty with him, knew that Speed was telling the truth, so she ordered Henry to take his books and move to a seat nearer her desk, where she might keep an eye on him. In one end of the seat to which she assigned him sat a dirty little cross-eyed urchin who was understood to be the outcast of the school. When Henry had to sit beside him a titter ran round the school which more fully roused his ire against Speed and made him vow to have revenge, or, in his own words, "to git even with that sissy."

When recreation time came Speed stayed in the schoolroom and became better acquainted with the teacher, who found him a high-minded boy of manly principle. He knew if he went out to play Henry, with others like himself, would make it unpleasant for him, so he decided to remain indoors till the rougher element should have become used to his presence in the school and would let him alone at recess time. But Speed had to pay for this act at noon, when he started home for his dinner. Hardly had he reached the edge of the school grounds when Henry, accompanied by two other rough, heavy-faced and unkempt-looking boys, ran up beside him.

"So you won't come out at recess and play with us fellers, eh?" exclaimed Henry, menacing Speed with his fists.

"No, I reckon you feel too fine, you dern Lizzie," spoke up one of Henry's confederates. "Well, we're a-goin' to give you the worst lickin' you ever had in your life, my baby boy."

"Say, boys," said Speed, turning round and facing the group, "I ain't a fighting boy: my mother taught me better than to be like an animal, but if you force it on me—why, I'll give as well as take. I'm willing to let you all alone if you'll do me the same favor. But I won't be run over."

"Oh, hear little Miss Lizzie bluff!" cried one of the boys. "Say, little baby, does your mamma know you're out?" And the three roughs laughed at their own wit.

"Let's try his muscle," said Henry, edging close to Speed and scowling in his face. "I'm for slittin' even with him for tellin' that about me to the teacher. I'm ready to lay him cold, I am." And he bristled up and shook his fists under Speed's nose.

"All right, you fix him, Hen," said one of the other boys. "Then if he wants to scrap any more Dan, here, an' me'll finish him up."

Speed looked out to see if any help was near, for he felt himself unequal to handle the three at once, and he knew they were dishonorable enough to all attack him at the same time, giving him no show. But to his disappointment he saw the school grounds deserted, all the children and the teacher having gone to their respective homes for dinner. And the town was cut off from the schoolhouse by a row of low, bushy trees, whose lower limbs mingled with the tall weeds and grass, thus cutting off all view of that part of the ground from the few villagers who might be walking about the streets.

"Take off your coat an' git ready for me," warned Henry, jerking off his own coat as he spoke. "I'll manage you without much trouble, an' give you the first blow. Here—ready!"

Speed threw off his coat, and before the astonished Henry—who really thought he would take to his heels—could realize what his antagonist was about he had struck him a blow in the face and a second under the jaw that sent him sprawling on the ground, blood oozing from his nose. Upon seeing their friend down, the other boys sprang toward Speed, Dan grabbing for his throat; but they miscalculated their foe. Like a flash Speed's long, strong right arm swung out and caught Dan under the chin, throwing him across Henry, who was beginning to struggle to his feet. Then Speed grappled with the third boy, and they exchanged blows fiercely for a minute, when Speed, by sheer force, threw him to the ground and sat astride his shoulders, cuffing him right liberally in the face. "'Nough—'nough!" cried the whipped fellow, the blood spurting from his nostrils, for Speed had struck harder than he had meant to on the enemy's proboscis.

By this time Henry and Dan had got to their feet and came to pull Speed off their friend. "Don't touch me," said Speed, looking so determined at Henry that the latter drew a step backward, "for I know when to stop. I never strike after my fellow cries 'nough. But you fellows had not so much honor, for you all meant to jump on me at once and overpower me by your number. See what you got for it?" And Speed got off the shoulders of the whipped boy and stood bravely, fearlessly up before the cowardly pair who confronted him. "Now go, or I'll give you another round," he added, as the prostrate form slowly got to his feet.

"Well, are we to be friends?" asked Henry, addressing Speed as he put his coat on.

"Not enemies, I hope," answered Speed. "But your future conduct toward me will settle the question. Remember—never, never shall one of you call me names again, or I'll make this day's battle look worse than 30 cents. I'm off."

That afternoon Speed walked up to the teacher and made a confession, telling her all about the fight. "My mother said it was a case of 'have to,'" he ended up with.

"Your mother was right," said the teacher. "And I glory in your pluck, Speed. You are no coward."

"Well, Henry said he meant to get even with me," he laughed, "and I turned the tables by getting even with him."

When the Fairies Came Down the Rainbow.

By Helena Davis.

Grandpa Star had come to see the little Stars—Minnie, Tom and Mabel. Of course, grandpa intended visiting the mamma and papa of the three little Stars; but they were secondary, the small trio coming first with the dear old man. I may as well tell you that the little Stars' papa was dear old grandpa's son; but, as he had long ago grown up, grandpa now turned most of his attention to his three most interesting little ones when he came to pay an annual visit.

And grandpa was the very best story-teller in the world, so the three little Stars would tell you. Hardly an hour in the day went by—when the children were not in school—that grandpa was not kept busy telling "yarns," as he called it.

As grandpa arrived on Saturday morning, the children had the day to spend with him—a day unbroken by school. The whole forenoon they spent in assisting grandpa in unpacking and putting his wardrobe in the closet and bureau drawers. Then came luncheon, when they must share his company with their parents.

A grand time was planned for the afternoon, for they were to take grandpa to the park and spend the time roaming about in the woods or sitting beside the lake watching the boats that flecked the water like so many white-winged birds. But before luncheon was over clouds covered the sky and a heavy downpour was threatened. Tom, looking from the window, cried: "Oh, our afternoon is spoiled! It is going to rain; and, if I'm any judge, it's going to rain pitchforks."

"Why, isn't grandpa here?" exclaimed Minnie. "And how could any afternoon be spoiled when he is with us, I'd like to know?" and the little Miss looked her surprise at Tom's remark.

"That's what I say," put in Mabel, Tom's twin. "If we can't go out we can go into the big back porch—where no rain could ever get—and sit round grandpa and listen to a story."

Grandpa exchanged knowing smiles with mamma and papa Star. Then he bowed very low to first one little girl and then the other, saying:

"Very pretty of you, my dears, to say such nice things of an old chap like me; but I may not be able to dispel the gloom of the coming storm. However, I'm willing to try my best at entertaining three such fine stars as yourselves, I assure you."

Then the Star family adjourned to the library, papa Star going back to his office and mamma Star excusing herself to go and look after a coop full of little chickens which she had in the back yard, for she feared the storm might take them unawares.

Grandpa sat in the big window with the children about his knee, all looking out at the coming rainstorm.

"Wish we'd see a rainbow this minute!" exclaimed Tom. "Then we'd know that the rain was over and we could go to the park."

"Rainbow—rainbow," said grandpa. Then, his face lighting up, he quickly added: "Say, my little twinklers, come to the back porch and I'll tell you a rainbow story—a real fairy tale that I'm sure you have never heard before."

In a jiffy the happy children were grouped about grandpa in the deepest corner of the big porch, all attention and anticipation, for a story from him always meant something.

"Well, once upon a time," began the jolly old gentleman, "there lived a band of fairies in one of the European countries where fairies were not liked. A cruel king hated them for the reason that they were always foiling him in his wickedness and giving certain charms to his abused subjects that made them proof against his evil intentions, sometimes turning the tables on him and bringing to him sickness and heavy financial losses. So this mean king made overtures to certain wicked sprites that roamed the woods in company with a band of witches and wizards and made known to them his ugly intentions toward the good fairies. The sprites, hating the fairies as heartily as did the king, readily offered their assistance in ridding themselves and the monarch of the fairies. They hastened to an old witch who held certain powers over the fairies and who was wicked enough to use them if in return she could get the king to give her control over a part of his dominion. This the king gladly consented to do. So the persecutions of the good fairies began and the war waged mercilessly, many of the fairies getting caught in the old witch's traps and killed.

"One day, driven beyond their domain, the poor fairies, after vainly trying all their charms against their heartless and cruel foes, found themselves almost within the clutches of a band of witches and wizards, who outnumbered them by many hundreds. They were on a hillside exposed to the wizards' and witches' view, and were rapidly being overtaken by them.

"'We are lost,' said the queen of fairies. 'Our goodness cannot battle against the wickedness of witches, wizards, sprites and cruel king combined. Like the poor fawn that is pursued by huntsmen on horses, accompanied by fierce dogs, we must surrender and be exterminated.'

But just as the disconsolate queen spoke a heavy cloud gathered in the sky and settled down all about them. Lightning flashed, thunder roared, and rain such as had never been seen before fell in torrents. The witches, the wizards, the sprites and the king's hosts were swept down the hillside by the torrent and nearly all were drowned. But the cruel king and the wicked old witch managed to save their lives, and with all haste returned to the king's castle, swearing by all that was unholy to avenge themselves on the fairies whom they held responsible for the flood.

Now, strange to say, no heavy rain fell where the fairies were assembled. The clouds seemed to part over their heads, and the blue sky gleamed above them, while all about was as the darkness of night. As soon as the king and the old witch had taken flight toward shelter the clouds lifted and a beautiful rainbow stood across the land, one of its ends resting on the very hill on whose steep side the fairies still remained grouped. On beholding the rainbow—the most perfect one ever set on earth—the fairy queen hastened towards it, beckoning to her many followers to accompany her. To their happiness they found the rainbow quite firm enough to sustain fairies' weight, and they all climbed on top of it, walking and flying by turns till they had reached a very high part of the curve. Then the queen called all to a halt, and they held a council as to their further move. All agreed that it was useless to return to the place they had just escaped from, and decided to go to the other end of the rainbow.

So they set out to follow wherever it might lead them, knowing that their fate could not be worse than it would be here in the country of enemies.

For many days the fairies traveled and traveled, part of the time over land and a part of the time over seas, and all the time the rainbow served as a great, high bridge spanning many hundreds of miles. But as they journeyed along the rainbow would fade away and wholly disappear behind them, thus showing the fairies that they were safe from their enemies, who could not follow them, having no trace of their wandering. On the fifteenth day after starting on their trip the fairies came to the other end of the rainbow, and there they landed in the most beautiful forest they had ever seen, with rolling plains skirting it, and off in the distance a long, clear lake glistening in the sunshine.

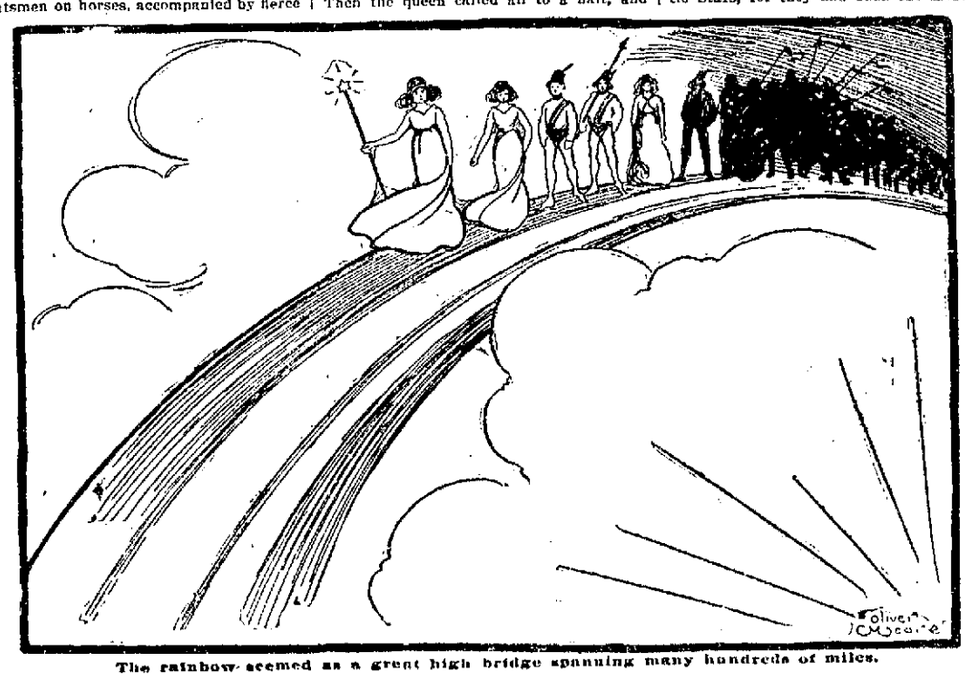
"Our land," said the queen, waving her wand high above her head. "A new and a happy home for my fairies," she continued, smiling on her followers. And her words were prophetic, for from that day success, and security were theirs, and they dwelt in the place commonly called "Fairyland."

Grandpa paused at the end of the tale, and looked on the faces of the three little Stars, for they had been the most interesting listeners he had ever seen. Not one word had they spoken while the story was on his lips, and even now, that it was told, they sat as quiet as little mice, fearing to speak lest the story be erased from their minds. The rain was coming down pretty steadily, and the full wind which had brought it with a dash was hardly still, though it was fast wearing itself out. As the old man and the little "twinklers" sat in silence the rain suddenly ceased, the clouds broke away, the sun smiled from his place in the western sky and across the northern hills there arched a great beautiful rainbow, so brilliant that all four pair of eyes were caught by it, and Tom, in an excited voice, cried: "There's the rainbow that the fairies came down, and I'll bet at the northern end is Fairyland. Gee, wish we could go there!"

"Oh, but no one but fairies can walk on the rainbow," declared Minnie. "It would let common people drop through, wouldn't it, gran'pa?"

And grandpa nodded his head, smiling as he said: "And now we may be off to the park, for the rainbow says the storm is over and the sun is coming out. We've still an hour to spare watching the boats on the lake."

"Yes, and I'm glad it rained," said Mabel, "for if it hadn't we'd not have the story of how the fairies came down the rainbow and found that strange place, 'Fairyland.'"



The rainbow seemed as a great high bridge spanning many hundreds of miles.

A Day With Busy Creatures in Wood and Water.

It was such a busy day in the wood and the water. Old Mrs. Elephant was putting her summer garments away in her trunk, while her baby was being entertained by Mrs. Snake's rattle to keep it quiet. Mr. Goat was blowing his horn to call his family in from the pasture, and Mrs. Woodchuck had flown to town to settle her bill. In the water the sword fishes were busy fencing, while the other fishes were engaged in weighing out water on their scales. Miss Hen Turkey was smoothing her feathers with her comb, and several little mermaids were making up the ocean's bed. Away in the depths of the forest a fugitive leopard was spotted by a giraffe, who used the rubber in his neck to good advantage.

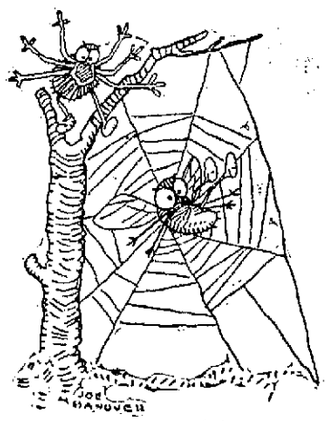
Acrobats on the Top of a Skyscraper.

The skyscrapers of this country, such as the Park Row Building, in New York, consisting of 30 stories, afford ample scope for the display of steeplejack courage. The experts engaged on this work think nothing of standing upon or sitting astride the steel frames used in the construction of skyscrapers, with nothing between them and the ground but 400 feet of air. The flagpole painters of America think even less of the risk they run, for they will climb a 60-foot pole fixed to the top of these immense buildings, and even will indulge in acrobatic performances, to show the utter contempt they have for the dangers of their calling.

Alack! Alack!

A mean little spider
Wove him a web:
Oh, sad was the day!
Oh, sad was the day!
For a cute little dyiet
All unawares
Came buzzing that way:
Came buzzing that way!

Into the meshes
Of old Spider's web
The little fly flew!
The little fly flew!



And from that sad day
That poor little fly
With this life was thru!
With this life was thru!

And that wicked old spider
Sat licking his chops
After breakfast was o'er!
After breakfast was o'er!
And said with a wink,
As he picked a fly wing,
"I still could eat more!
I still could eat more!"

Two Americans Sentenced to Be Shot in Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 8.—At dawn some day within the month three men, blindfolded, with their backs to an adobe wall, will be shot to death in Chihuhua, Mexico, as the last chapter of the most gigantic life insurance swindle in the United States in recent years.

The sentence of death has been affirmed by the supreme court, and the men to be shot dead are Leslie E. Hulbert, Dr. C. S. Harle, formerly son-in-law of one of the wealthiest cattle owners in Texas, and William Mitchell.

It is known that the swindlers got $25,000 out of the New York Life Insurance company, and that two men suffered death by poisoning, for these facts were confessed to by Dr. Harle. No effort was ever made to connect the men with previous frauds in Mexico in which coffins were buried containing junk and afterward money collected from insurance companies. The Hulbert-Mitchell-Harle swindle was big enough in itself.

It took a corps of detectives months to get at the bottom of the affair, and the life insurance company spent double what the swindlers got to convict them.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Oct. 8.—Final prices of stocks showed mixed changes from Saturday's closing within a generally narrow range. The gains were most conspicuous and in the majority. Six thousand shares of United States Steel sold at 48¾ and 49 compared with 48¾ on Saturday. Canadian Pacific, Iowa Central preferred and Smelting gained large fractions. Pullman sold at an advance of 4 and General Electric 2½. Great Northern preferred declined 1.

While the early rise in prices did not exceed fractional limits in most of the representative stocks, the buying was of a brisk and varied character, particular in the specialties. Railroad stocks did not maintain their advance as well as the industrials, realizing in Reading and Atchison prompting sales of other stocks. Among the advances recorded were: General Electric 4 points, Westinghouse Electric and Pacific Coast 3, Smelting 2¾ and International Power 1¾. Toledo, St. Louis and Western preferred fell 1.

Wide advances in a group of high priced industrials did not affect the general list, which dropped. Pressure was directed especially against Reading. General Electric advanced 8¾, Westinghouse Electric 7⅛, Pullman 5½, Smelting 4½, United States Reduction preferred, Atlantic Coast Line 1⅝ and Norfolk & Western, Chicago & Alton, Rock Island, Southern Pacific preferred, Bethlehem Steel and Allis-Chalmers preferred 1 to 1¼. There was a decline in Toledo, St. Louis & Western of 2½. Vulcan Detinning preferred 1½ and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Union Bag preferred 1. Bonds were irr.

Speculative operations were of a languid character aside from those embracing the minor stock in which there was quite a revival of interest. Locomotive joined the movement in the industrials with a rise of 2. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Vulcan Detinning preferred rallied to 1 and 1¾ respectively over Saturday's closing. Chicago & Alton also improved 2⅝ and St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred, North American and Cotton Oil, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1. At 1 o'clock Union Pacific increased its advances to 2 points and Amalgamated Copper 1.

Active bidding for individual stocks stopped in the mid afternoon and the market became dull and commonplace. Prices all around were well sustained. Kansas & Texas preferred rose and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred converted its early loss of a point into a similar gain.

The market closed easier with a reaction in force. The advance in Amalgamated Copper reached 1½. Reading rallied sharply to a fractional gain, Missouri Pacific, Sugar, Distillers Securities and Virginia Iron 1. American Snuff preferred and Knickerbocker Ice preferred sold at a decline of 5. Prices then receded generally from the level held for most of the day.

Mrs. Jenks, who had been staying at the hotel with her husband for several days, has long been a victim of insomnia and it had been her custom to take a hot bath immediately before retiring. Some time after midnight Mrs. Jenks filled the both in her suite and plunged in. The water was almost boiling and she was terribly scalded before her husband succeeded in removing her from the tub.

SHIP'S STRONG BOX EMPTY.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The Echo De Paris today published a dispatch from Cartegena, Spain, announcing that a sensation had been caused there by the discovery that the strong box of the Italian steamer Sirio (wrecked in August last on Romigas island, with the loss of about 150 lives), although found to be hermitically sealed, was empty, raising the presumption of the complicity of the crew in the wreck.

HELD FOR "BLACK HAND" CRIME.

Italian is Under Arrest at New Castle, Pennsylvania.

New Castle, Pa., Oct. 8.—Vinbones Volos, an Italian, was arrested today accused of being one of two alleged Italian "Black Hands" who at midnight mortally wounded Petro Romeo, of Buffalo, N. Y., at New Castle Junction. Romeo is still living, but his death is soon expected at the hospital.

Years ago, Romeo said, he was chief of police in his native town in Italy, when he killed a young malefactor, who was escaping arrest. The dead criminal, it is said, was a "Black Hand" member, and that organization pursued him so bitterly that he came to this counutry, settling at Buffalo, where his family now live. Recently Italians interested him in a supposed business venture here and he arrived at midnight, being met at New Castle Junction by two men, who, he says, were Rocco Exposito and Vinbones Volos. They explained it was necessary to walk along the tracks to West Pittsburg. Half a mile away, they shot him four times in the face and neck, throwing him over the tracks for dead.

YOUNG MAN STRUCK BY FAST TRAIN

Charles Cooke Killed Near the Pennsylvania Coal Docks Sunday.

WAS CROSSING TRACK

Did Not Notice Approach of the Train —Brakeman Badly Hurt at Fostoria.

Charles Cooke, an employe of the Centlivre company, was struck and killed by the engine pulling Pennsylvania passenger train No. 9 at 4:10 o'clock Sunday afternoon just south of the oil house, near the coal docks. Engineer George W. Kensill, who was at the throttle of the engine, saw Mr. Cooke crossing the tracks and slowed down, realizing the dangerous position of the man, but he did not see the engine hit him as the body was thrown on the opposite side of the track. The train was stopped and the crew went to the side of the prostrate body, but life was extinct and the remains were picked up and brought to the depot, where they were delivered to Undertaker J. C. Peltier and taken to his morgue. Dr. Stults, the coroner, was called and identification was not established until after his examination of the body and the pockets of the dead man. A receipt for money paid to John Rudolph, the tailor, led to the identification. Dr. Stults says death was instantaneous. The unfortunate fellow's neck was broken, his chest was crushed in and there were several cuts on the head. In addition to the receipt of Mr. Rudolph the pockets contained 30 cents in cash and a dairy with cash entries of money received and paid out.

The deceased was twenty years old and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cooke. He was a bottler by trade and for some time had been thus employed by the Centlivre company. Besides the parents, a brother and two sisters survive him. Charles had been boarding on Oliver street, but he had packed his trunk and made other arrangements for going to the home of his mother, at 1406 Hayden street, to live. The remains were taken there this morning. The father of the young man is employed as a laborer at the electric power plant on Spy Rune avenue.

The remains of Mr. Cooke will be taken to Bluffton for interment, the body and the funeral party leaving over the Lake Erie and Western road for that city at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SHOPMAN ENTERTAINS FRIENDS.

Eugene Stienkorb, a machinist at the Fort Wayne Electric works, was host at a stag party at the St. Joe Athletic club rooms Saturday night, the occasion being the first anniversary of his arrival in the city and the guests were his shopmates. A feature of the evening was a chicken supper, served in an appetizing manner and accompanied by all of the trimmings. After supper an impromptu musical, in which every person present was made a participant, was given, the numbers being interspersed by cinch and pedro. The singing of the Electric Light quartette and of John Wegmiller, the keeper of the toolroom, were exceptionally fine and each number was encored. The quartette is composed of Gus Kayser, Charles Brenner, George Kayser and William Schultz, all of the Electric works. The other participants in the banquet were Gus Rogge, Al Miller, Charles Brenner, Gus Kayser, Val Werkman, Robert Shuman, Ed Jordan, John Wegmiller, J. Rose, Tony Rose, H. Shnur, William Freudeman, William Moeller, Ed Bender, George Kayser, William Wessel, Carl Kayser, Hugh Bengs, F. Motherwell, C. There were only three contestants and only two heats were necessary to decide the matter. "Little Pete," owned by Engineer Peter Carter, won two straight heats; Dollie Wilkes, owned by R. J. Lyons, was second, and Black Crow, owned by J. McIntyre, came out third. The prizes were a beautiful leather couch, donated by the National Furniture company; two pair of woolen blankets and a smoking set. Owing to the threatening weather, there were only a few spectators, about thirty.

The base ball game between the Lake Shore employes at Jackson and this point was played yesterday and resulted disastrously for the Fort Wayne boys. FELL FROM A CAR.

Brakeman Kreisher Probably Fatally Hurt at Fostoria.

J. P. Kreisher, a Nickel Plate brakeman whose home is in Bellevue, fell from the top of a box car Saturday afternoon and was so badly hurt that recovery is doubtful. He was rear brakeman on a through freight train bound for this city and the supposition is that he went too near the edge of the car and when the train swung around a curve, was jerked off. The accident occurred two miles out of Fostoria and the crew did not miss him until arriving at a station several miles beyond. They sent back to look for him, but he had already been found by section men. He was unconscious when found and has remained in a semi-conscious condition since. He was taken to his home in Bellevue and the last reports were that his condition was very grave.

WILL MOVE TO CALIFORNIA.

Ed Hobrock, a smelt at the foundry of the Fort Wayne Electric works, will start for San Francisco, Cal., next Thursday to make that city his permanent residence. COLE'S ORIGINAL HOT BLAST—THE CLEAN STOVE

Cut No. 1
Shows how Dustless Ash Cover is used—the modern method. (Patented)

DUST PROOF

Cole's Original Hot Blast is the cleanest stove ever placed on the market. Our method of removing ashes shown by cut No. 1, is perfectly clean and overcomes the many objections to the ash pan used in other stoves. The elbow draft casting with its upward slant allows the empty coalhod to be set under the draft so that no ashes or coals can be spilled on the floor. Our patented dustless ash cover shown by illustration is furnished free with Nos. 122, 152, 182 and 196 stoves. It keeps down every particle of dust in removing ashes, a feature that will be appreciated by every tidy housekeeper.

Ash pans when used in other stoves are too small to hold a full 24 hours' accumulation of ashes. They are usually over-filled when removed, and the ashes in the bottom of the stove are dragged out on to the carpet, as shown by cut No. 2. You are all familiar with the ash pan method, and have, no doubt, gone through the process many times of spreading a newspaper or cloth under your stove every time the over-filled pan is removed.

The ash pan is not only dirty, but is a great evil in stove construction. It adds a door and joints which can be made only temporarily air-tight by the use of stove putty. These joints open after a few weeks' use, rendering ash pan stoves worthless as fire keepers, and makes them fuel-eaters rather than fuel-savers. The ash pan and the shield for guiding ashes into the pan, also prevent base heat.

Our method is the only clean way. The whisk broom, turkey wing and dust cloth are dispensed with. There are no joints to leak air, base heat is not retarded and Cole's Hot Blast is the cleanest stove, the best floor heater and the only stove in the world which can be guaranteed to remain always air-tight.

SMOKE PROOF

The feed door on this stove is guaranteed smoke proof and does away with the escape of smoke, soot and gas into the house. Side feed doors used on other stoves discharge a cloud of gas and soot-ladened smoke into the house and scatter soot and ashes over the carpet when opened.

Another point: In feeding coal into a side feed door it has to be thrown into the stove, which usually results in scattering much of it over the floor. With our cleanly smoke proof feed door the coal is poured into the stove even to the dust in the bottom of the hod without a particle being spilled on the floor.

This clean and economical stove burns the gases which often escape into the rooms with other stoves. The annoyance and dirt from kindling new fires is dispensed with, as the rooms are heated up for two or three hours each morning with the fuel put in the night before and the Fire is Never Out. COLE'S ORIGINAL HOT BLAST is the cleanest stove made and will more than save its cost in fuel each winter.

ARKANSANS LYNCH A NEGRO.

Mob Finally Kills After Siege Lasting More than Twenty-four Hours.

Argenta, Ark., Oct. 8.—Following the killing of John Lindsay Saturday and the wounding of Milton Lindsay, his son, who is a policeman, by negro undertakers, a mob last night lynched H. Blackkburn, another negro.

The lynching is the culmination of a long series of clashes between whites and blacks.

The Lindsays were fired on as they were passing the Colum Bros.' undertaking shop. The Colums then barricaded themselves and defied the police.

There is no danger of Pneumonia, Consumption or other serious lung trouble if Foley's Honey and Tar is taken, as it will cure the most stubborn coughs—the dangerous kind that settles on the lungs and may develop into pneumonia over night.

If you have a cough or cold do not risk Pneumonia when Foley's Honey and Tar will cure you quickly and strengthen your lungs.

Remember the name — Foley's Honey and Tar—and refuse any substitute offered. Do not take chances with some unknown preparation that costs you the same when you can get Foley's Honey and Tar, that costs you no more and is safe and certain in results. Contains no opiates.

Cured After Physicians Said He Had Consumption.

E. H. Jones, Pastor M. E. Church, Grove, Md., writes: "About seven or eight years ago I had a very severe cold which physicians said was very near pneumonia, and which they afterwards pronounced consumption. Through a friend I was induced to try a sample of Foley's Honey and Tar, which gave me so much relief that I bought some of the regular size. Two or three bottles cured me of what the physicians called consumption, and I have never had any trouble with my throat or lungs since that time."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00.

The 50 cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much.

$30,000,00 SALE

SEVENTY-TWO LOUIS FOX ADDITION LOTS SOLD.

Seventeen More Choice Lots To Be Sold This Week.

One week ago this paper announced that 89 lots in the Louis Fox Addition would be offered for sale commencing last Thursday. This announcement had scarcely been made before prospective buyers commenced to visit this new famous addition, and it was generally predicted this sale would be the record breaking sale of all additions that had over been offered in the city of Fort Wayne.

The result has proven the prediction to be absolutely true as there has been 72 of these desirable lots sold at a gross price of $30,000.00. Besides a number of lots that have been sold the second time by the original buyer at an advance. There still remain just 17 lots to be sold. Six of these lots are $250 each; eight of these lots are $275 each; while three of them will go at $300 each. Every one of these 17 have the new broad cement sidewalk in front of them, and are up to the grade of the walk. Everyone of them has the benefit of the big South Wayne Sewer, and all of the improvements are paid for. Any one of them can be bought for $10.00 and $5 per month.

"A word to the wise is sufficient." If 72 Fort Wayne people have purchased $30,000 worth of these lots within the last four or five days, would it not indicate that it would pay you to immediately call at the office and let us take you out, and show you one or more of them, and if you are satisfied you will buy, if not, it has cost you only a little time to investigate. These remaining lots will only last a short time. If you are interested call at the office of W. E. Doud, over the Old National Bank, who will be pleased to show you.

I have gilt edge investments in Local Bonds and Local Stocks and Mortgage Loans.
